During 2009, 73% (21,514) of our clients were less than 150% of poverty and a visit to one of our centers was often the only health care they received. Half of all sexually active Maine teens sought counseling and services from a family planning health center and many of these young people continue to use our trusted services through adulthood. In 2009, 8,073 teens were provided the care they needed to prevent unintended pregnancy and the spread of sexually transmitted diseases. 75.2% of teen clients involved a parent in their decision to come to family planning.

Once one of the highest in the nation, Maine now has the 5th lowest teen rate in the country. In the last 10 years alone, Maine's teen pregnancy rate has dropped by 27%--one of the most dramatic improvements in the country.

The FPA's community-based outreach program increases the number of communities with projects that use evidence-based strategies to prevent adolescent pregnancy and insure that all Maine youth are healthy, safe, and respected. In 2009, 59 community coalition and advisory councils were established involving 950 community stakeholders.

In 2009, community-based outreach educators provided:

> 1,603 youth received information, education, and one-on-one counseling through community-based youth programs.

> 5,694 youth were reached through school-based programs.

> 946 adults who work with youth in these settings also received information, resources, support and/or training.

> 80 parents and 26 youth were reached through parent-child education programs.

> 3,648 adults and 196 youth received information or education about family planning services through social service agencies, residential programs, colleges and other post-secondary education facilities and workplaces.

> 2,883 adults and 1,609 youth community members received information about family planning and teen pregnancy prevention efforts through the FP Materials Review process, networking and coalition meetings,

During 2009, a total of 9,128 teens received information about birth control methods, STIs, clinical services, and other sexual health related topics through Outreach educational programs and efforts.

Funding is provided by State and Federal agencies (that also monitor program operations and outcomes), fees for service, foundation grants and other restricted revenues.

The FPA's Male Involvement Project addresses family planning and reproductive health information and services for males. While research shows that young men recognize unintended pregnancy, STDs, and HIV/AIDS as serious problems, and acknowledge that prevention is a joint responsibility, experience has shown that drawing them into family planning/reproductive health information and service programs requires approaches that focus on their needs.

During FY 2009, FPA sites (Augusta, Belfast, Rockland, and Damariscotta) plus our partner, Maranacook Student Health Center, served 381 unduplicated male clients.

Building community partnerships, on-line and offline communications and marketing, radio advertising, fee assistance, and extensive community outreach and education has led to increases in male family planning clients. Additionally in 2009, 221 young men participated in educational programs offered at local schools, colleges, other youth service providers, and teen parent programs.

An important objective of the Male Involvement Project is to increase skills of clinical staff in providing reproductive health services to young men. In 2009, FPA's male outreach educator provided training statewide for all family planning clinical staff, conducted site visits to improve male services, and researched and made available resources for clinicians working with male clients.

Similar to our Community-based services, funding for the FPA's education and research projects is provided by State and Federal agencies (that also monitor program operations and outcomes), foundation grants and other restricted revenues.

In 2009, we defeated legislation that would have required parental consent for birth control through the HEART of ME: Healthy, Empowered and Responsible Teens of Maine campaign. In addition, the FPA galvanized opposition to regulations that would have prevented our clinical staff from providing women with information and counseling on abortion even if the patient had requested the information, and ensured that the members of Maine's Legislature were informed on priority reproductive health care issues. Despite significant budget cuts to our family planning programs and services in the previous year, our advocacy efforts generated enough support from the Maine Legislature to reduce the proposed cuts in 2009 of more than $440,000 to approximately $140,000.

Private contributions and agency-endowed resources fund these projects. No public funds are used.
