	Wilson College was founded in 1869 as a liberal arts college for women The idea of founding the College was conceived by two pastors from the Presbytery of Carlisle The plans were approved in April 1868 Ms Sarah Wilson, for whom the college is named, donated the initial gift of $30,000 to establish the College The founders envisioned that the College would offer a rigorous program of study for young women who would be challenged to think critically, analytically and independently The College is one of 255 colleges in the nation that have a chapter of Phi Beta Kappa Wilson College has seen significant support from older alumnae, who are extremely committed to the college The Forever More Capital Campaign, completed in 2001, raised over $57,000,000, of which over $34,000,000 (or 60%) was contributed by alumnae While remaining true to its basic values and principles, Wilson College has been on the forefront of significant trends in the society For exampleE - In 1982, the College was the first in its region to offer a program that enables adult men and women of the surrounding community to further their educations - Distinctive programs were also created in the mid-1980s in Veterinary Medical Technology and Equestrian Studies that combine strong career preparation that is grounded in the liberal arts These majors have become among the most highly enrolled in the sciences - A post-baccalaureate program for teacher certification, the Teacher Intern Program (TIP), was added in 1988 to meet the growing need for teachers who have work and life experience, yet have not fulfilled all of the courses required for teacher certification - In 1996, Wilson was among the first colleges in the nation to offer a comprehensive residential program that permits single women to live with their children in specially designed residence halls The award-winning Women with Children program increases access to higher education for women whose educational options are limited by their special circumstances In June of 2003, the College hosted an international conference designed to help other institutions learn how to serve this population - In May 2006, the College began offering its first master's degree, a Master of Education (M Ed) Commencement 2009 graduates included the first nine students to earn a Wilson masters' degree in education - For the seventh year in a row, U S News & World Report's America's Best Colleges (2010) named Wilson a "Top Tier" and "Best Value" college, ranking it sixth in the North among comprehensive colleges Being named a "Best Value," due to high quality and affordability, is important to families Wilson College's enrollment was 838 as of fall 2009 This figure represents a total of 328 students in the College for Women program, 479 in the Adult Degree Program and 31 in the M Ed program The College's general requirements include one course in women's studies, required of all students in the College for Women and continuing education programs Many of the courses in the curriculum incorporate content that is consistent with our goal as a women's college, e g , the achievements of women, awareness of women's place in history, and information concerning the opportunities for and obstacles to women's role in various fields of study and occupations These courses frequently address cultural minorities with a particular focus on women Programs are geared towards the needs of women and celebrate women's accomplishments The College's strong corporate, federal and foundation grants program is reaping grants from the National Science Foundation for scholarships in mathematics, biology and chemistry and a grant from The Richard Lounsbery Foundation to fully launch The Wilson Institute for Women and Girls in Science, Mathematics, and Technology Distinctive Programs - Wilson offers three majors for students interested in a career in the equestrian field (1)Equestrian Studies (with concentrations in either Equine Management or Equestrian Management), (2)Equine Facilitated Therapeutics, (3)Equine Journalism - In 1996, the College instituted one of the first programs for single Women with Children (WWC) in the country specifically designed to allow single mothers the opportunity to attend college while living with their children in campus housing Women admitted into the program must possess the academic qualifications that apply to all students on campus The must also complete a separate application process to join the WWC program following admission to the college The program offers benefits for the woman herself, who may participate fully in campus life, as well as to her children, who are also exposed to an environment in which there are many stimulating opportunities to learn new vocabulary, experience new things, and participate in programs especially for children An endowment provides full funding for child care for program participants The nationally recognized Women With Children Program continues to flourish and now also houses the National Center for Single Mothers in Higher Education Wilson, because of this program, has been chosen by NAICU as one of only eight colleges in the nation that exemplify private higher education's commitment to excellence in educating low-income students - Veterinary Medical Technology (VMT) program The major objective of the VMT program is to provide the students within the program with the necessary education background and practical (hands-on) experience to enable them to become valuable members of the veterinary medical profession All VMT courses are taught in compliance with the American Veterinary Medical Association (AVMA) to ensure the students develop and perfect the necessary skills needed to be successful in their chosen profession, as well as to successfully sit for the Veterinary Technician National Exam VMT is one of Wilson's most highly enrolled programs and attracts many excellent students and contributes to Wilson's strength in the sciences
