Form 990, Part III – Program Service Accomplishments

Experienced leaders in politics, education, and the private sector convene at Hunt Institute seminars and symposia to exchange insights and receive information about transforming ideas into practice. By bringing together policy organizations, businesses, philanthropies and educators, the Hunt Institute helps build partnerships to develop support nationwide for school improvement strategies. The information exchanged at the Hunt Institute seminars and symposia informs the Institute's work with states. These convening opportunities also connect state leaders ready to engage with the institute to improve education in their states. Events such as the Hunt Institute's annual symposium for governors provide a one-of-a-kind forum for diverse groups of leaders to discuss educational issues candidly and privately. In the 2008 fiscal year, the Hunt Institute provided the nation's governors, lieutenant governors and North Carolina legislators with education policy information. In addition, the Hunt Institute provided information on science education to 500 teachers and administrators in North Carolina.
