Mission: To energize youth and school communities by providing performing arts opportunities in under-used school spaces, responding to young people's development needs through consistent positive adult mentor relationships and providing a place for young people's voices to be heard. To educate, inspire and change young people through access to the performing arts. Unchained Talent exists in response to the lack of performing arts opportunities for young people in our community. We provide young people the opportunity to participate and enjoy student-centered performing arts; to learn leadership, advocacy, and life skills through mentorship and peer relationships in preparation for a productive future; and help young people learn about themselves and others, experience the outside world through performing arts and to have their voice heard through the arts.

Vision: Young people in Baltimore will have access to participate in and enjoy the performing arts as a part of their education and therefore will have higher attendance rates, better grades, a deeper understanding of self and community and a richer educational experience to prepare themselves for their futures.

A few of this year's highlights include:

1. Three Live Productions, including The Talent Showcase, an HIV/AIDS Awareness event, and the full-length original production, HOPE is...
 - i) On Dec. 5, 2008 the Talent Showcase featured student-produced original and repertory works featured new student talent, featuring a short original play called Cafe Isis.
 - ii) In February 2009 HIV/AIDS Awareness Event live performance at Mondawmin Mall featured the student-original and inspirational songs "Why Me?" and "Positive of HIV".
 - iii) Finally, in May 2009, Unchained Talent presented HOPE is... which winds together the stories of three characters and a community to show how one person's actions impact those around them, whether they know it or not. Drawing on their own experience, the reflections of their community and this moment in their nation's history, Unchained Talent students wrote and produced an original play featuring music and dances to inspire themselves and their audience to answer the question "How can we be the hope for the future?"
2. Summer program at William C. March – Unchained Talent students and staff partnered with William C. March Middle School to over the summer to work with the young artists to write and present their own original play, public service announcements and inspirational songs as a part of their summer school enrichment activities. This is a continuation of Unchained Talent's off-campus partnerships and new programs sites in an effort to create opportunities for all Baltimore City school youth to have access to the performing arts and a safe and productive place to have their voice heard. Watch for more Unchained Talent sites in the years to come!
3. New school at Lake Clifton Campus next fall – The Lake Clifton High School Campus will be welcoming the REACH! Partnership School, an innovative, college-focused transformation school for Baltimore City middle and high school students operated by our partner Civic Works.
4. More Unchained Talent members graduated from high school in 2009! Unchained Talent alumni continue to study at Salisbury University, Community College of Baltimore County, University of Baltimore, Stevenson University, and more.
5. Mobtown Madness III – This annual event is a fun puzzle solving race – much like the "Amazing Race" – where teams work together to solve clues, which leads to more clues. This race starts at Little Havana in Federal Hill, and winds through the entire city. In 2008, over 20 teams participated, and the clues lead them up the Bromo Seltzer Tower in downtown Baltimore, through Mt. Vernon to the Annie E. Casey Foundation, to the Maryland Institute College of Art, up to Korea town in Southern Charles Village, to Paterson Park for some duck-pin bowling, and many more places! It was great fun for those that know Baltimore well and a great way to get to know this great city for those new to town. It was decidedly a successful fund-raiser as well as a successful friend-raiser for Unchained Talent, giving our teams a fun event to participate in while learning about and supporting Unchained Talent's performing arts, youth development and mentoring activities!
