		PART IX A 1 MID SOUTH DELTA INITIATIVE The Mid South Delta Initiative (MSDI) represents a partnership between Delta communities in Arkansas, Louisiana, and Mississippi and the W.K. Kellogg Foundation (WKKF). Started in 1997, the purpose of MSDI is to strengthen Delta communities by connecting them with regional economic systems and support structures to create positive social and economic impact, especially for vulnerable populations. The initiative focuses on rural economic development impacting 1.4 million residents located in 55 contiguous counties and parishes along the Mississippi River. This long-term community and leadership development initiative incorporates: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. Capacity building and project grants and technical assistance. 2. Support for expanding regional leadership and economic policy initiatives, and 3. Technical assistance and support networks for groups and organizations that work intensely with community-based programs in the region. Phase I of MSDI focused on helping 15 teams working in communities in 27 of the 55 counties and parishes of the targeted MSDI area. The work created region-wide economic opportunities through investment in social and economic development institutions and organizations that support communities throughout the region. Phase II of MSDI builds upon the work of Phase I and offers Delta citizens the opportunity to develop their own plans to create a region with opportunities for all. To create change, the initiative has the following goals: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. Promote activities that have a regional focus, deepen the impact on people and future generations, and expand the positive momentum for change across the region. 2. Support the values and culture of the region so that new programs and their activities reflect the region's commitment to family, faith, and community. 3. Engage people and groups who are often missing from community change efforts, including people who are young, elderly, disabled, or low-income, people of all races, and businesspeople. Involve youth in every aspect of social change work and in development of policies that affect them. Support new approaches that challenge and change the thinking and habits of individuals, groups, organizations, institutions, and businesses regarding what is truly possible in the Delta. The Foundation and its Delta partners are creating a "learning community" and a Regional Alliance to share ideas, information, best practices, and tools about building the capacity of people and communities to increase economic opportunities in the Delta.

		PART IX A2 KELLOGG LEADERSHIP FOR COMMUNITY CHANGEKellogg Leadership for Community Change (KLCC) seeks to develop diverse community leadership that has the ability to work across boundaries presented by age, geography, race, culture, class, or faith by mobilizing collective action to improve local conditions and the quality of life. The KLCC series is designed to help communities play a greater role in solving their own problems. KLCC aims to mobilize and support grassroots leaders, especially from within communities that traditionally have been left out of the public policy and community decision-making processes. Emphasizing a participatory leadership model, KLCC urges people of diverse backgrounds to apply their respective strengths and knowledge toward realizing a new collective vision for their community. KLCC Session II was launched in June 2005. It has engaged five communities from around the nation around the theme "Valuing and Building Youth-Adult Partnerships to Advance Just Communities." Session II sites will continue their KLCC work until fall 2007. The Session II communities are 1 Bellingham, Washington2 Benton Harbor, Michigan3 McDowell County, West Virginia4 Denver, Colorado5 Chelsea, Massachusetts
