The Political Department is NARAL Pro-Choice America's representative with political campaigns on the state and federal level. In cooperation with other departments, the Political Department works to further solidify our reputation as the "political arm of the pro-choice movement." Our primary goal is to ensure that more fully pro-choice leaders are elected to public office and that more activists are educated and mobilized to affect political change on the local, state and national levels. To that end, we work with our affiliates to broaden and strengthen their outreach efforts, distribute money to fully pro-choice candidates, and help candidates to discuss the choice issue from all angles during their campaign for office.

The Policy Department, newly formed in spring 2008, consolidates many functions of the former Government Relations and Legal departments. Its charge is to advance cutting-edge, politically sophisticated, and targeted pro-choice policy at state and federal levels. We do so by lobbying Congress and the executive branch, assisting affiliates with their policy priorities, and representing NARAL's policy views to other key constituencies such as coalition partners and the media, as needed. The department tracks and analyzes policy developments (including bills and other proposals, and key legal cases) at both federal and state levels of government, provides written analysis in many forms, and works to conceive creative and compelling ways of framing policy issues and debates.
