PART IX - A
SUMMARY OF DIRECT CHARITABLE ACTIVITIES

1. REVOLVING LOAN FUND (RLF) PROGRAM

A revolving loan program has been established in the Dominican Republic. The general program includes agroforestry training and loans to impoverished farmers for agroforestry farm development to enable them to become self sufficient. Long term loans (6 to 8 years) are made for establishing timber and fruit trees and short term loans (about 1 year) for intercrops. The farmers use the loan proceeds to purchase plants, seeds, fertilizer and other agroforestry supplies as well as for their living expenses while they are working on the farms and the crops are maturing. The loans will be repaid as the crops are harvested and sold. Some of these farmers have begun to harvest their trees and are selling their wood and beginning to repay their loans.

The farmers who are interested in the program generally live on their farm land and the soil quality is generally suitable. 50 farmers, all below the poverty level, were selected using specific criteria and have received training in agroforestry by an agroforestry technician. The loan procedures are established and part time personnel have been contracted to operate the program. Seven of the farmers have repaid their loans and five new farmers who have made applications and been approved are now developing their farms. This makes a total of 50 farmers who have benefited from the program. All together more than 40,000 trees...eucalyptus, mahogany, bananas, coffee, cacao, etc. have been planted.

The farmers generally grow a large portion of their seedlings in community nurseries established by the foundation. This significantly reduces the cost of establishing their farms.

2. PRODUCTION DESIGN

The Foundation built a distiller which is used to distill oregano oil, eucalyptus oil and citronella. This is being sold in the Dominican Republic market and the proceeds used to fund foundation programs. This provides a market for farmer's oregano. We are beginning to explore other uses for oregano oil such as protecting food supply and possible use as a natural insecticide and fungicide. Ways of packaging the oil are being explored.

3. OAXACA

The Foundation supports activities in the Mixtec Indian communities in the mountains of Oaxaca. Most of these people live at or below the poverty level and make their living by growing corn and beans for self consumption. They often live at great distance from government services.

The Foundation, using portable equipment, supplied dental care in remote areas where reaching a government clinic would require a trip of 2 or more hours. Medicines are supplied to the clinic of Santa Inez.

Materials for ecological latrines were supplied in several communities. Rural stoves were constructed in several communities so that smoke could be directed out of the home. Before, much of the cooking was done on an open fire. The stoves, by taking the smoke out of the house limits respiratory problems and eliminating the open fire minimizes children getting burned.

The Foundation sponsored the building community center in Loma Chimedia. A second story is currently being added to the main building. The center will be used for community meetings, women's craft and sewing activities, teaching of the Mixtec language etc. The building was constructed of bricks made by members of the community. A number of water storage containers are being built as well.

4. BARBED WIRE

Our Foundation is working with another non-profit organization to develop a project serving two needs, employment for handicapped people and barbed wire for farmers to keep animals and plant agriculture separate. Barbed wire manufacturing equipment has been modified so that operating requires only the arms. Two sizes of wire or strengths are used. The more easily bent wire is used for the barbs. Plans for a workshop and trial runs in West Africa are underway. A consultant has been hired with the initial responsibilities as follows:

Consultant: Purchase wire, arrange import, and evaluate 1.6/1.8 mm combination. Consider cost vs. volume trade offs for the next purchase of wire, import 1.8 mm vs. local 1.8 mm. Is rust a problem with local wire? Sell some barbed wire and get farmer feedback.

5. BRAIN REASEARCH

This activity covers research directed towards non-pharmaceutical treatment of currently incurable diseases such as Alzheimer's and Parkinson's disease.

Part of the study involves medical library research to find low cost symptomatic treatments such as physical and speech therapy, value of exercise and avoidance of obesity. The next level of the research for possible relief of symptoms is by reprogramming the neural system. For example, implanted deep brain stimulators in the sub thalamus neurons. These devices are very expensive and we are investigating non-invasive methods such as bio-feedback and extremely low frequency electrical stimulation.

Finally we plan to investigate the stimulation of brain cells to produce natural chemicals which may be neuroprotective. Stimulus possibilities include heat and electromagnetic radiation. Experiments with rats show that exercise stimulates the production of neurotrophic factors which slow degeneration and cause the growth of new neurons in the hippocampus, an area in the brain important for Alzheimer's disease. It remains to be determined if this will occur in humans. However exercise can be recommended at this time since it has been shown effective in treating depression which often accompanies neurodegenerative diseases.

Biofeedback using EEG and accelerometer signals has been experimented with to reduce tremors associated with Parkinson's disease. In cooperation with a consortium of researchers, new signal processing and display techniques have been investigated for studying tremor. The possible use of tremor data as an indicator of disease progression is also being studied. Preliminary analysis indicates that tremor frequency decreases Parkinson's disease progresses.

We have found that massage has an effect on tremor similar to biofeedback. Both biofeedback and massage seem to produce an "alpha state" in EEG. This state is the opposite of stress or excited state which is known to promote tremor.

Experiments with a massage machine have shown little effect on tremor. This is disappointing since available machines would be much more economical than a massage therapist. The study is still continuing and other methods of obtaining the benefits of human touch will be examined.

We have found that a combination of heavy exercises (a stationary bicycle and treadmill) and biofeedback allows for the reduction of medication (and resulting side effects) for symptomatic treatment of Parkinson's disease. In one case this reduction has lasted several years but we have not yet isolated the relative contribution of exercise and biofeedback.

The individual mentioned in the last paragraph has had other ailments for the last couple of years which led to severe reduction of his exercise. His medication has had to increase to 400 mg of levo dopa per day from an earlier 200 to 250 mg per day. Massage therapy has continued during this time. This result hints that exercise may be more important than massage (or biofeedback) in slowing symptoms.

In cooperation with another foundation, the electrical stimulation of the peripheral nervous system is being studied for reducing tremor and muscle stiffness and pain associated with neurological disorders. Long range plans include using electrical stimulation to mimic part of the effects (e.g. contracting of muscles) of exercise. This is important since persons with more advanced disease have difficulty in exercising.
