These loans were obtained in the normal course of business of the credit union with the same terms and conditions available to all members. These loans are not required to be reported on Schedule L, Part II.

The Code of Ethics pertains to employees as well as the Board of Directors. Annually, all employees and Board Members sign an acknowledgment that they have received and read the Code of Ethics. Further, all employees and Board Members must identify, in writing, all deposits and loan accounts in which they have a related interest. Loans granted to senior management, Directors, or their related parties must be approved by the Board. If the loan is for a Board Member or his/her related interest, the Board Member must leave the boardroom during the discussion and vote. The Board Member is recused from the vote.
Page 6 Part VI Section B Line 15 a & b	Page 6 Part VI Section B Line 15 a & b	The credit union's Board of Directors assigns responsibility to the Board's Personnel Committee to interview members of senior management for input in the preparation of a written performance evaluation of the credit union's President. The Personnel Committee is comprised of independent directors. The Personnel Committee will then present the written evaluation to the full board, along with a recommendation for compensation. The compensation level is based on a combination of the President's perceived value to the credit union and job performance. Based on the Personnel Committee's recommendation, the full Board approves the President's compensation. For members of senior management, written performance evaluations are prepared by the President and reviewed with the Board's Chairman. No other Board Directors are involved in the compensation discussions for senior management. Compensation is based on the value to the credit union and job performance.
