Other income is received from the sale of books that are written by Rock International as a part of their work. These books are published in many languages. Most are given away but some are sold where appropriate. No profit comes from these books as publication cost is far more than money received for them. No tax deduction receipt is given to anyone for purchasing the books.

In 2008 other income is reported for the sale of tables and an Awareness Banquet held to inform those interested in the work of Rock International. No tax deduction receipt was given to anyone for purchasing the tables.

Sale of books $23416

Sale of tables $8090

Total $32506

Cause for Omission of Schedule A in Original Submission

The reason for omission of this form is carelessness and inexperience. This is the second year that Rock International has filed the 990 form. In the first year the long form was used by ignorance and there was difficulty in filling out this form. This year the EZ form was used and was much easier. The preparer is not a professional accountant but should now be more familiar with the process and able to handle this task in the future. The original 990 did not change with the addition of Schedule A. We apologize for the omission and trust that this corrects the issue.

Sincerely,

Tommy C. Davis, Book keeper for Rock International
