Mission: To support and strengthen the arts, historical and cultural organizations and individuals through collaboration and coordination to further economic development.

28. Promotion of the Arts: HVCA promotes the arts through marketing initiatives, as well as through production of major events and opportunities for individual artists and arts organizations to gain visibility and recognition for their work. In 2009, this included development of a collaborative ad campaign called "It's All Right Here," to promote the cultural offerings of the region; support for the statewide "Locally Grown History" project involving historical societies and museums; coordination of an arts component to of First Night celebrations in Danbury (with prized awarded to 4 artists); hosting of a Spring Arts Celebration to showcase the work of local photographers, musicians and actors (attended by app. 100 people over three days); and the establishment of an "Accessible Art" model for art exhibits in municipal facilities (with its first shows taking place at Danbury City Hall). The highlight of the year was a juried art show at the local mall, which brought the work of 50 artists to the general public over the course of several weeks; the opening reception was attended by over 400 people, 5 artists were awarded cash prizes and 9 sales took place. This event proved to be a model for future networking and promotion efforts, as it brought together the business community (the mall, caterers and several business sponsors), the local state university (which provided technical assistance and in-kind services), social service agencies (which supplied volunteer docents for the run of the show), the participating artists and many members of the general public.

29. Building Networks: As a regional, cross-disciplinary entity recognized by the State of Connecticut as part of its Local Arts Agency network, HVCA works to bring together artists, arts organizations and businesses around common concerns and goals. In 2009 HVCA convened 6 roundtables for writers, visual artists and executive directors, attended by app. 100 people total. It also worked to develop a new website and begin to put into place an online directory and other tools to connect arts consumers and arts producers throughout the region. The most visible activity contributing to HVCA's network building is its annual Business Supports the Arts awards breakfast. Seeking to bring artists and businesses more closely together, HVCA each year honors businesses that have shown significant generosity and creativity in their support of the arts. In 2009, two local businesses were honored at an event that drew 170 people from all walks of life and all corners of its 10-town service area, fostering connections that are expected to lead to future collaborations.

30. Professional Development: HVCA is dedicated to capacity building among arts organizations and individual artists and to that end hosts frequent workshops and other presentations to enhance skills such fundraising, marketing and networking. In 2009, 3 sessions were held, serving app. 50 people total.
