990PF, PART XV - Restrictions or Limitations on Awards*Our Program Interests:

The Goldman Sachs Foundation (the "Foundation") supports initiatives that foster economic growth and opportunity globally. The two signature programs funded by the Foundation are 10,000 Women and 10,000 Small Businesses. Both programs are designed to drive economic growth and job creation through a model that offers small and medium sized enterprises in underserved communities access to business and management education, capital, mentors and networks.

10,000 Women

Launched in 2008, 10,000 Women is a five-year initiative, targeting the education of women entrepreneurs in developing and emerging markets primarily through grants to U.S. and international educational institutions. A series of research reports produced by Goldman Sachs and others found that investing in the economic empowerment of women could have a significant impact on global GDP growth. Moreover, this research found that women invest their success in those around them, leading to healthier, safer, and better educated families and communities. By September 2010, 10,000 Women programs were operating in 22 countries including Afghanistan, Brazil, China, India and Rwanda, reaching more than 2,000 women. The program is tailored to local communities by a network of more than 70 academic and non-profit partners including seven of the top ten business schools in the world.

10,000 Small Businesses

In 2009, 10,000 Small Businesses was launched as a five-year program designed to unlock the growth and job creation potential of small businesses in underserved communities in the U.S. Built on the model of education, capital, mentors and networks developed through 10,000 Women, this U.S. focused program delivers education through a network of community colleges supported by Foundation grants. By September 2010 the program was operating in the two largest U.S. cities – New York and Los Angeles – and had reached nearly 100 businesses.

Foundation History

Founded in 1999 with an investment from Goldman Sachs, the Foundation focused on education and high potential, underserved youth for nearly 10 years. After shifting its mission to economic growth and opportunity in 2009, the Foundation continued to make some contributions, some of which are multi-year commitments, to several organizations who had received funding through the education and high-potential youth grant making focus of the legacy foundation.

Candidates for Funding:

The Foundation makes grants primarily to organizations participating in and supporting the goals of the following Foundation led initiatives:

- 10,000 Women: A five-year campaign to foster greater shared economic growth by providing underserved women around the world with a business and management education. The Foundation makes a select number of grants to business schools and universities in the United States and Europe, business schools in developing and emerging economies, and leading research and development organizations.
- 10,000 Small Businesses: A five-year effort providing underserved small business owners in the United States with access to capital, business education mentors and networks. The Foundation makes a select number of grants to community colleges, universities, and leading community and business development organizations.

Rarely will a grant be made in response to an unsolicited proposal.
