We work with youth of color (the sector of youth in the community with the highest risk of infection) and train them to use media in order to educate their peers about the risks associated with HIV, as well as the importance of practicing safe sex and getting tested We use an adaptation of the Community PROMISE intervention, an evidence based, CDC-approved curriculum for HIV prevention that has been proven effective for youth at high risk The program consists of a core group of "peer advocates" who learn about HIV prevention, media development, media literacy, and community outreach The peer advocates then create "Role Model Stories" using different forms of media (such as print, audio, and film) to convey what they have learned and share their knowledge with other youth in the community The youth create relevant media pieces that they can use to share with their peers and effectively spread the message of HIV/AIDS awareness and prevention

4b

(Code) (Expenses $ 260,823 including grants of $ 260,823) (Revenue $ 0)

The Ford Foundation funded two programs in 2009 Sexual and Reproductive Health Advocacy Project (SRHAP) and Collective for Healthy Community (CHC) These funds supported a two year participatory action research and advocacy project, representing a diverse group of organizations and a broad set of strategies to address the social justice implications for advancing a sexual and reproductive health and justice agenda in Louisiana Our focus is to prioritize the needs and leadership of marginalized and under-served women, their families, and their communities The initiative engages key community representatives and organizations in advocacy efforts that emphasize women's sexual and reproductive health needs, enhance the mental health and wellness of women and girls, and empower residents to participate in the community rebuilding efforts by advocating on their own behalf Our goals include a transformative sexual and reproductive health and justice movement in Louisiana that empowers women and marginalized communities to access the social, economic, political, mental, and spiritual resources and opportunities to need to live whole healthy lives free of control, exploitation, and regulation This community-based approach to mental health emphasizes individual and community wellness through mutual support and collective action A collective of disaster-trained community leaders who "lived and now work the disaster recovery efforts" conduct a series of wellness workshops that unite Katrina survivors to tell their stories, learn the impact of the trauma framework, reflect on existentialist issues such as death, isolation and freedom, learn cognitive reframing processes to regain personal and collective efficacy, learn calming techniques, and engage in rituals for renewal and revival We implemented a peer-led community-based mental health intervention that promotes emotional resiliency among at-risk African-American youth Through a series of media and community events, adolescents gained problem-solving and coping skills to help manage post-Katrina psychological distress We trained a core group of peer leaders who serve to reduce mental health stigma and recruit and engage their peers The creative arts (music, dance, visual and language) are used as the primary medium for emotional teaching Adolescents displaying moderate to severe symptoms of distress undergo psychiatric assessment and will be referred to a more intense level of care

4c

(Code) (Expenses $ 75,000 including grants of $ 75,000) (Revenue $ 0)

We promote HIV risk reduction among African American and Latino youth, ages 13-24, in the Greater New Orleans area The prevalence of HIV & AIDS was alarming in the pre-disaster Gulf Coast, and the New Orleans region had the highest number of HIV/AIDS cases statewide, representing nearly half (45%) of all persons living with HIV in Louisiana (OPH/HAP, 2002) Post-disaster, youth in Louisiana are now at a perilous intersection of emotional distress, diminished health resources, and lack of comprehensive sexual education To address these issues, we implemented an enhancement and integration of existing youth HIV risk reduction projects which engaged high risk black and Latino youth in focus groups and youth-led work groups which trains Black and Latino youth as Peer Advocates in HIV/AIDS prevention via interviewing their peers, writing role model stories and creating short videos We also promote youth leadership development and advocacy so as to increase utilization of school-based health centers in New Orleans A cohort of youth from these receive specialized training in social marketing to create a multimedia HIV risk reduction campaign utilizing advanced technologies to reach a minimum of 3000 youth of color in the greater New Orleans area

Identifier	Return Reference	Explanation
F990_P06_S0B_L11	Form 990, Part VI, Section B, Line 11	The board was emailed a copy of the return and reviewed it prior to the regularly scheduled meeting. At which time they voted on the 990.
F990_P06_S0B_L12c	Form 990, Part VI, Section B, Line 12c	WES complies with provisions of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002, requiring nonprofit organizations to provide whistleblower protections for employees and board members who risk their careers by reporting suspected illegal activities. We provide guidance and discourage inappropriate or illegal behaviors, the agency provides annual internal control and ethics trainings to its employees and board members. WES encourages all employees and program participants, acting in good faith, to report suspected or actual wrongful conduct. We are committed to protecting individuals from interference with making a protected disclosure and from retaliation for having made a protected disclosure or for having refused illegal order of this policy. We have defined each possible violation in our Policies and Procedures manual and trained each mid-level employee so they may be more equipped to handle sensitive issues when they may arise. We also use this as a training so they may communicate to other staff on how to address any issues or complaints that may surface. This policy, along with others, is reviewed by all new staff when hired and annually as a refresher. Individuals should share their questions, concerns, suggestions, or complaints with the Executive Committee of the Board of Directors. A formal process to deal with complaints and prevent retaliation is outlined in the Employee Policies and Procedures. Employees and Board members are encouraged to report any inappropriateness or suspected illegal activities without fear of penalty or retaliation. Suspected activities should be reported to an immediate supervisor, or if the immediate supervisor is the suspect, suspicions may be reported to a higher authority. Every employee and board member has the right to address concerns with the Executive Committee of the Board of Directors. All complaints will be taken seriously and investigated. The Executive Committee would address these concerns immediately in their monthly Executive sessions.
F990_P06_S0B_L15	Form 990, Part VI, Section B, Line 15	It is the desire of WES to pay wages and salaries that are competitive with other employers in the marketplace in a way that will be motivational, fair and equitable, variable with individual and organizational performance, and in accordance to statutory requirements. Each key employee's compensation is approved in the Executive Session of the Executive Committee of the Board of Directors. The Executive Committee and the Treasurer is responsible for advising the Executive Director of the final disposition of the proposed action. For example, the Executive Director proposed compensation for the Development Director along with her resume and job description. The Executive Committee of the Board of Directors then reviewed the proposal, taking all factors into consideration, and motioned for the hiring of Lisa Richardson during their Executive Session. All proposals to hire and promote all key staff members go through this process. WES conducts annual reviews during September in conjunction with each employee's annual performance review. Once these reviews are completed, WES conducts a compensation review. WES also conducts a review of job descriptions to insure that we are fully aware of changes in the duties and responsibilities of each staff member. The results of these reviews and recommendations made by the Executive Director will be presented to the Board of Directors for consideration. If approved by the Executive Committee, the Executive Director notifies the staff of the change.
