division assesses and assists with the development of products developed for law enforcement, first responders and corrections officers with prospective uses, marketing and commercialization efforts V Technology- Based Research and Related Programs 1 Scientific Research Group The main focus of the WVHTC Foundation research activities are on utilization of technology-based research as a vehicle for economic development and diversification Much of the WVHTC Foundation's work is provided to the federal and/or state government as customer, particularly the United States Department of Defense The approach the WVHTC Foundation uses to achieve its technology-based work and objectives is to strategically design "technology clusters" around high potential, sustainable, technology target areas that are viable from both a business and technical perspective These area range from product line engineering, biometrics and identification technologies, broad band and collaborative computing technologies, software suitability testing, NIAP certification, information warfare/security technologies, computational grid applications, robotics, biometrics and internet-based web-site support services for the federal and state governments These clusters were developed after a careful analysis of the skills present in the area and the needs and opportunities of the marketplace The following are some of the WVHTC Foundation's technology-based research and related programs, mainly funded by grants and cooperative agreements, currently carried out by the WVHTC Foundation (a) Robotics The WVHTC Foundation has developed robotics products which assist the war-fighter, the first responder and/or law enforcement personnel, which have been transferred to its subsidiary Innovative Response Technologies, Inc Follow-on activity in the robotics product has varied applications, consisting of both software and hardware development An e-Commerce system is in the research and development phase which purports to facilitate highly efficient limited production runs of specialized hardware This program is no longer operational and has been shelved for the time being (b) DoD TechMatch A system providing a web portal that uses keyword-matching technology to deliver daily notifications of DoD R&D opportunities to small and large businesses It facilitates DoD T2, bringing revenue to the DoD through patent licensing while improving mission capabilities Currently, there are more than 2,000 registered users and 7,800 patents available for licensing www dodtechmatch com This program is currently being transferred to an entity not affiliated with WVHTC Foundation (c) National Product Line Asset Center (NPLACE)/U S Air Force II This project is focused on developing a software suitability testing strategy for the use of commercial-off-the-shelf (COTS) software in architecture-based system development and maintenance activities Several COTS products have been tested and the results are placed on an advanced web-site for use by Air Force developers www nplace wvhtf org
