| Form 990, Part VI, Section B, line 12c |                  | On an annual basis board members and officers are required to complete a conflict of interest disclosure. At the first board meeting of the school year, the Chairman of the Board distributes the conflict of interest form to each member. At the end of that session, each conflict of interest form is collected and reviewed. If a conflict of interest is identified, the board will review the item and determine whether to allow the activity, or exclude the individuals from items involving their conflict. When any matter in which a board member or officer has an interest comes before the board for decision or approval, that interest shall be immediately disclosed to the board by that board member or officer and the person in conflict shall recuse himself/herself from any discussion or vote relating thereto. |

| Part III 4a | Program Service Accomplishments | At Riverdale, we rely on a powerful model based on guiding principles in four key areas: mind, character, commitment, and community. Within each category we strive to create ambitious programs that benefit the entire community. "Mind" - High standards are valued at Riverdale, but so are innovative approaches to learning. The school invites students to cast a wide net during their years on campus, encouraging them to explore subjects in the arts and sciences that interest them. Students' intellectual curiosity and emotional growth are given thoughtful support even as they grow independent as learners, which serves them well during their college years and beyond. "Character" - Honesty, self-discipline, resilience, and perseverance are qualities we encourage in our students every day. A multifaceted support system on campus provides students with the support they need as they pursue opportunities and learn life lessons. "Commitment" - A successful life is made up of the many commitments we make, both to ourselves and to others. Riverdale's emphasis on commitment to a wide range of activities, including academics, sports, community service, and the arts, endows students with a sense of satisfaction and balance during their years at Riverdale. "Community" - The Riverdale campuses are an ideal setting for an intimate community of young learners. Students also are encouraged to expand their view of community beyond the wooded campuses; they are encouraged to view themselves as citizens of the world, with all the joy and responsibility that implies. Interdisciplinary learning is a crucial component of every student's education at Riverdale. Disciplinary boundaries are permeable in many specific assignments throughout the curriculum, but the final two years provide a truly sustained and deeply reinforced exposure to a kind of thinking that most students might otherwise not encounter even in college. Making analogies and describing relationships between quite different modes of knowing, thinking, making, and being is not easy. Learning to think in this special way requires a high degree of analytical skill and repeated exposure, training, and practice over a long period. It also demands intellectual maturity. In their junior year, all Riverdale students take Constructing America, a two-credit American Studies course jointly taught by a history and an English teacher. For the first time, students are regularly invited to read literature through the lens of economic, political, and social conditions and theories, and to explore the intersection of cultural heroes, literary characters, and national mythologies. They gain a feel for living history as carefully chosen literature fleshes out the social changes and the threads of consequence that give history its specific character. Sometimes they see connections not only between a story and a historical event but also between historical eras in their succession and corresponding transformations in literary expression. Such learning inevitably strengthens students' abilities to think abstractly and analytically. In senior year, Integrated Liberal Studies (ILS), stretches the capacities developed in Constructing America. Two disciplines expand to five: literature, philosophy, history of science, history of art, and history of music. Five major essay assignments are designed to engage students in finding a thesis that will tie together aspects of political theory and art, or literature and scientific theory, and so on. The readings are sophisticated texts of central cultural importance, and if some students find the work challenging at first, they all experience a growth in the flexibility and creativity of their thought processes by virtue of the effort. As more than one student has said, "ILS actually teaches you how to think." |

| Part III, Line 1 | Mission          | "The mission of Riverdale Country School adopted November 15, 2006, is to offer students the foundations of a liberal education that will guide them to rewarding, purposeful lives. In its second century, Riverdale's unique character is still shaped by the commitment of its founder, Frank S. Hackett, to high academic standards, scholarly, intimate teaching, abundant play in the open, and a care for the best influences. It is our duty to help our students expand their competence and resourcefulness and to enable them to think critically. Riverdale students are not merely passive recipients of knowledge; teachers support students in the challenging work of actively constructing their own understanding and skills in a balance of intellectual, artistic, athletic, and community activities. The ideal Riverdale experience is a friendly, lively meeting of disciplined minds working, creating, and performing together in the classroom and in the larger arena made possible by New York City and our country campuses. The knowledge, culture, experiences, interests, abilities, and points of view that each member of the Riverdale community brings to the school enrich the lives and deepen the understanding of those with whom they interact. We value the quality of the relationships we forge. Parents feel a strong partnership with the school and students form lasting bonds with their teachers, mentors, and peers. For these reasons, we seek diverse experiences and viewpoints in our students and their families, our faculty, and our curriculum. In the patterns of our daily life on campus, we seek to create a model of the ways in which people should treat and respect one another. Riverdale Country School is an independent day school that provides a continuous coeducational program for boys and girls from pre-kindergarten through grade twelve. The school is located on two wooded campuses in the northwest corner of New York City, NY. At Riverdale we seek academic excellence and personal achievement within an ethical and supportive environment. Riverdale provides a stimulating and challenging curriculum, bright and engaging students, a well-educated and dedicated faculty, a wide array of artistic, athletic, and other extracurricular opportunities, an impressive physical plant, and an environment conducive to learning. Interested parties will discover a community proud of its friendly atmosphere and warm relationships. Grounded in the values of the liberal arts, Riverdale strives to maintain an appropriate balance among its courses and activities. The School treats students as individuals and respects their unique strengths, while offering the most rigorous academic program possible. We prepare students for both competition and cooperation, and we foster their respect for others and for the community as a whole. At all times the School attempts to create an atmosphere in which trust, honesty, and mutual support are assumed. Riverdale is a remarkable school with ambitious goals. We believe we have invigorating and rigorous programs within a happy, positive environment." |
