Public, educator, family awareness via website: After reviewing several professional consulting corporations, the board picked one to work with the foundation and its volunteers and (contracted) staff. Everyone made huge efforts to work together on improving the website so that more people would find the site and then stay to examine the useful research and information. Making the site welcoming to the generatino that are currently parents, as well as the newer teachers, and the students themselves, is important to helping all the students each achieve success.

Statement 7 - Form 990-PF, Part IX-A, Line 2 - Summary of Direct Charitable ActivitiesDescription

Public, educator, family awareness via website transition: portion of work by consulting firm to make transition from do-it-ourselves website to site that can better communicate the research and information of use to anyone working with students of any age, and of use to the students themselves, so that every student achieves success.

Statement 8 - Form 990-PF, Part IX-A, Line 3 - Summary of Direct Charitable ActivitiesDescription

Reviews, studies of research: We checked over 70 major sources for recent education research and made abstracts and fact lists for use in informing the public about current research (with proper citations). (Note: much of the commentary on research is being re-written to be more accessible to the public and, thus, not all of it is available on-line at this time.)

Matthew Crawford – The New York Times best selling author of Shop Class as Soulcraft is giving the keynote address for the California Industrial and Technology Education Foundation (CITEAF) State Conference at Riverside Convention Center, Raincross Ballroom, Victoria Room, Friday, March 12, 2010 at 5:45 pm (7:15 pm keynote).

High schools have been closing their industrial technology programs all over California, and Mr. Crawford (University of Chicago Ph.D. in political philosophy) sends a message that clearly refutes the wisdom of this trend. His fantastic, inspiring and best-selling book has caught the attention of the country.

The CITEAF is opening up their banquet for the public to hear Mr. Crawford. All are welcome to register for the banquet at the Riverside Convention Center. Attendees who become members of CITEAF will receive a copy of his book at the conference. Matt will sign copies for all who come to the event. Go to: <http://www.citea.org/conference> and click on Registration, then click Friday Banquet Only.

Johns Hopkins University School of Advanced International Studies professor Francis Fukuyama wrote in The New York Times Book Review June 5, 2009 that "Shop Class as Soulcraft is a beautiful little book about human excellence and the way it is undervalued in contemporary America."

Matt has been in the media's eye and on PBS "News Hour." He will inspire you with thoughtful insights.
