Published six times a year, Camping Magazine provides articles on youth development, staff training, health and safety, and innovative programming ideas, and is distributed to members and over 500 non-member subscribers. ACA's Web sites, www.ACAcamps.org and www.CampParents.org, are important resources for timely news and critical reports and are visited by an average of more than 642,600 and 337,760 visitors a month, respectively.

Accreditation is a voluntary process that over 2,300 camps have chosen to go through. This communicates to parents that a camp has voluntarily undergone a review of up to 300 health and safety standards that apply to resident and day camps. The aim of this program is to educate camp staff in the administration of key aspects of camp operation, particularly those related to program quality and the health and safety of campers and staff. At June 30, 2010, 2,668 camps were paying camp fees, 248 of which are working toward accreditation and have thus become affiliated with ACA.

(Code) (Expenses $ 273,860 including grants of $) (Revenue $)

Public Relations and Awareness actively provides information and resources to the general public through print, broadcast, and electronic media. A newsletter for parents is distributed four times a year. Many ACA resources are available to the public at CampParents.org and ACAcamps.org. The Association acts as a central gathering point for information, generating nearly 400 million media impressions annually. An ethics commission manages the interface with the public consumer, paving the way toward better camping by allowing parents a forum with which to address concerns and receive mediation and guidance on those issues impacting the camp professional.

(Code) (Expenses $ 46,284 including grants of $) (Revenue $)

Government Relations provides information to camp professionals and the public about laws and regulations relevant to the camp experience. ACA partners with other organizations to work with governmental agencies to advocate for regulations and laws that support your development and child protection.
