Program Service One Junior Achievement's sequential and integrated K-12 programs help young people relate what they learn today in school to future successes in life and work. Providing young people with the tools to think critically, solve problems, use information, interact with others, and work as a team are all elements critical to their roles as productive members of the workforce and community. Volunteers are a vital source of inspiration and motivation for young people. These classroom volunteers help young people better understand economic concepts as a first step in making a successful transition from school to work. During the 2009-10 school year, over 2,000 classroom volunteers provided 43,909 South Dakota students the much-needed link between what students learn in school and the business world. Student Impact: 43,909 JA Students reached in 2009-10
