Part I Line 2

LOIs are submitted by applicants and are then reviewed by an external panel of public health professionals familiar with the teen pregnancy issue. LOIs are scored and based on scores, the applications are put into three categories (green, yellow, red). Green applications are invited to apply for funding, yellow applications (based on funds available) are invited to request technical assistance to review their project and address reviewers concerns, and red sites are encouraged to spend time on the SC Campaign Online Learning Center to increase their understanding of program planning as it relates to the issue of teen pregnancy prevention. Green sites that apply for funding are required to submit a work plan that details out the project implementation, a budget with justification, and a cover letter addressing questions or concerns the reviewers might have had from the LOI process. The grant submissions are reviewed internally and grants are awarded based on availability of funds. The funded sites are presented with a formal contract, the opportunity to receive intensive TA, and an evaluation consultation and/or plan. Objectives are monitored and checks are cut based on the sites meeting reporting deadlines, attending trainings and meetings, and being responsive to SC Campaign communication.
