Individual Rights Defense Program

Through the Individual Rights Defense Program (IRDP), which represents our most direct and well-known form of involvement on campus, FIRE provides assistance to individual students, professors, and campus groups whose fundamental civil liberties have been violated. FIRE resolves cases through a strategy that includes writing letters to administrators; generating public scrutiny by exposing abuses through our extensive Media Network; and, when necessary, linking individuals to appropriate legal assistance through our Legal Network.

Through the IRDP, FIRE defends students and faculty members against violations of their freedom of speech, freedom of conscience, religious liberty, freedom of association, and due process and legal equality.

Individual Rights Education Program

Through the Individual Rights Education Program (IREP), FIRE arms students and faculty members with the knowledge to understand their rights, to determine if those rights are being violated, and to take the steps to correct such abuses. FIRE also educates the public about the state of liberty on our nation's campuses, continually exposing abuses of civil liberties through the media and on our website (www.thefire.org) and holding administrators accountable for their actions.

FIRE's IREP combats these problems by educating both students and the public through the following projects:

- FIRE's series of five *Guides to Student Rights on Campus, which educate students about their free speech, due process, and religious liberty rights and ways to preserve them, while also providing students with the knowledge to understand easily abused campus programs and policies like first-year orientation and paying student fees.
- FIRE's Internship Program, which engages undergraduate and law students in FIRE's mission and trains them as advocates for liberty for ten weeks each summer. FIRE's undergraduate interns are also required to develop reform campaigns to be implemented when they return to their campuses.
- FIRE's Public Awareness Project, which promotes public knowledge about individual liberties, educates the public about the state of liberty on our nation's campuses, and encourages public scrutiny of our higher education institutions through advertisements, media engagement, e-communications, social media tools, and the dissemination of print publications such as FIRE's annual speech code report.
- FIRE's Video Initiative, which prompts valuable dialogues about free speech issues on our campuses and reaches the mainstream public through the widespread dissemination of short documentaries

Policy Reform Project

Through the Policy Reform Project, which encompasses FIRE's efforts to proactively and systematically challenge policies that violate students' and faculty members' fundamental rights, FIRE targets the most egregious campus policies. FIRE staff members review thousands of university policies each year and challenge universities to revise the worst of them before they are used to punish individuals or groups on campus. Through a combination of letters to administrators and collaboration with students and faculty members on campus, FIRE has challenged hundreds of policies since this project's launch.

FIRE works to reveal and eliminate these speech codes from individual campuses through the following projects:

- Spotlight: The Campus Freedom Resource, which is a comprehensive searchable online database that catalogs speech codes at more than 400 schools, reveals them to the public, and demonstrates how these codes are used to punish speech on campus. This extensive database serves as a resource for students, parents, and members of the public as well as for student, local, and national media.
- FIRE's Legal Transformation Project, which encompasses FIRE's efforts to engage administrators as partners in correcting policies through outreach letters, presentations at conferences, and the publication and distribution of a handbook for school officials. This project also works to increase the legal incentives for administrators to reform their policies and practices through the submission of amicus briefs in strategically chosen cases to keep First Amendment rights strong on campus and through FIRE's qualified immunity project, which seeks to apply personal legal and financial liability for administrators who abuse students' constitutional rights either through speech codes or other acts of censorship.
- FIRE's Speech Code Litigation Project, through which FIRE coordinates lawsuits challenging campus speech codes. Through this project, FIRE identifies potential plaintiffs and connects them with attorneys from our Legal Network. Victories within this project set legal precedents that facilitate widespread reform and raise the stakes for administrators who continue to maintain unconstitutional speech codes.
- The Justice Robert H. Jackson Legal Fellowship, which provides recent law school graduates with an opportunity to work closely with FIRE attorneys to author legal scholarship related to FIRE's work. Each new piece of legal scholarship about relevant FIRE issues contributes crucial intellectual ammunition to the fight to restore liberty to our nation's campuses, while also training a young legal scholar to go out and fight on behalf of campus liberty.

Campus Freedom Network

FIRE's Campus Freedom Network (CFN) is a dynamic coalition of students and faculty members dedicated to advancing individual liberties on their campuses with the aid of grassroots support from FIRE. This network works to safeguard liberties on campuses nationwide by generating on-campus reform, spreading awareness among students and faculty members on campus, and petitioning administrators for change. To facilitate this, FIRE provides resources and educational opportunities for CFN members, arranges speeches by FIRE speakers, organizes an annual summer conference, and promotes collaboration via a social networking website (www.thecfn.org).

The CFN—which has more than 4,500 student, faculty, and alumni members from more than 1,300 schools across the nation—provides an important network of support on the ground on campus. These members act as FIRE's eyes and ears, recognizing injustices when they take place and directing wronged students and faculty to FIRE to seek help.

The CFN works to create lasting change on college campuses through the following projects:

- The “Freedom in Academia” Student Essay Contest, which encourages high school seniors to learn about FIRE’s issues and evaluate the state of free speech in higher education through a 700-1,200 word essay.
- The Campus Freedom Network Student Conference, an annual summer conference which brings more than 50 students from all across the country to Philadelphia, where FIRE representatives and allies teach them about their rights on campus and train them as advocates for liberty.
