Program Description

Program Services Expenses

International Burn Center:

$65,705

The GBF helped to launch the first highly specialized nonprofit Reconstructive Surgery and Burn Center in Kabul, Afghanistan, which opened in December, 2008. This Center is a beacon of hope to those who suffer from debilitating injuries, burns and congenital deformities that have left them physically handicapped including cleft cases and women in need of obstetric fistula reconstruction.

While it is possible to fly patients from impoverished countries and treat them in the U.S., the cost of doing that is exceptionally high. It makes far more economic sense to treat them in their own country. More importantly, consistent with their mission, the foundation supports sustainable development in these impoverished countries. Opening up a Reconstructive Surgery and Burn Center in Kabul, Afghanistan, contributes to the development of a critical hospital infrastructure for the betterment of Afghans' lives. Furthermore, this highly-specialized center makes available emergency medical treatment for our military.

The International Burn Center is currently being relocated to an existing hospital so the GBF can collaborate with CARE International and/or AMORelief.

• Project Faith:

$83,000

This is the Grossman Burn Foundation's patient support program. Project Faith provides treatment and support to victims of burn or related injuries that have no other means of obtaining quality healthcare.

This initiative is named after the Foundation's first recipient from Kenya, Faith Wanjugo, who was disfigured after suffering horrific burns in a cooking accident in her village. The surgeons at Grossman Burn Center provided their surgical services to Faith at no charge. Faith returned to her three young children and her village in September 2009 after undergoing nine reconstructive surgeries.

In 2010, as part of this same project, the GBF accepted the case for Bibi Aisha. At 16, her father promised her hand in marriage and she was handed over to a large family, who she claims were all members of the Taliban in Oruzgan province. "I spent two years with them and became a prisoner," she says.

Tortured and abused, she couldn't take it any longer and decided to run away. Two female neighbors promising to help took her to Kandahar province. But this was just another act of deception. When they arrived to Kandahar her female companions tried to sell Aisha to another man. All three women were stopped by the police and imprisoned. Aisha was locked up because she was a runaway. And although running away is not a crime, in places throughout Afghanistan it is treated as one if you are a woman. A three-year sentence was reduced to five months when President Hamid Karzai pardoned Aisha. But eventually her father-in-law found her and took her back home. That was the first time she met her husband. He came home from Pakistan to take her to Taliban court for dishonoring his family and bringing them shame. The court ruled that her nose and ears must be cut off. An act carried out by her husband in the mountains of Oruzgan where they left her to die. But she survived. And with the help of an American Provincial Reconstruction Team in Oruzgan and the organization Women for Afghan Women (WAW), she is finally getting help.

The United Nations estimates that nearly 90 percent of Afghanistan's women suffer from some sort of domestic abuse. "Bibi Aisha is only one example of thousands of girls and women in Afghanistan and throughout the world who are treated this way.

Aisha is reminded of that enslavement every time she looks in the mirror. But there still times she can laugh. And at that moment you see her teenage spirit escaping a body that has seen a lifetime of injustice.

• Humanitarian Assistance Manual:

The GBF completed a Humanitarian Assistance Manual which will be published and made available worldwide to over 200,000 humanitarian organizations via electronic download and hard-copy. The manual is a step-by-step guide to obtaining humanitarian assistance and access to various organizations that can help an individual in need of serious medical treatment. This guide will provide an appendix of hundreds of organizations worldwide, as well as information on how to obtain a visa, travel arrangements, escorts and funding for the patient. In addition to the United States, we will be resourcing organizations in other areas of the world including Europe, Israel, Australia and the UAE (to name just a few) to help aid and expedite the process for anyone in any kind of a critical situation, no matter where they may be in the world.

• Triage Training Program:

$20,507

The GBF developed support training for physicians in developing countries. The three areas will include 1) transporting physicians in developing countries to the Grossman Burn Center in California for several weeks of extensive burn treatment training, 2) implementation of telemedicine equipment (and training on solar powered telemedicine backpacks) in clinics globally and 3) distribution of high-quality high-definition burn training videos and computer software programs.

• Stop Violence Against Women Globally:

The GBF recently started a vocal petition/documentary campaign which will serve as a tool to help educate communities on how acts of love and respect will always prevail over violent and abusive behavior. These materials will be translated and distributed worldwide through clinics and hospitals, including those involved in Triage Training Program. The goal is to reduce domestic violence globally by raising awareness and providing educational support.

Under this initiative, the GBF also plans to create and implement a Mental Health Support Program for Afghan Women. This program will connect a rural patient who has no access to mental health support to a licensed, uniquely trained and multi-lingual therapist by chat, audio or webcam. Online, the Grossman Burn Foundation has partnered with My Therapy Net, an online mental health therapy organization to provide access to counseling services for Afghani women who have been victims of domestic violence, abuse and oppression. The program will provide for U.S. licensed (multi-lingual) Farsi and Pashtu speaking counselors to meet online with Afghani patients. They provide proprietary chat, audio and video communications via existing Internet or satellite connectivity as well as all consultation necessary for the proper deployment of the system. By using the Internet, the women may access a Farsi or Pashtu speaking therapist even if they are unable to go in person because of the shame society may make them feel, if they are in the hospital recovering from surgery, unable to accept visitors or in a school or shelter and unable to walk in public. Online Therapy provides them with continuity of care and support for their mental health, at a time when they are in urgent need of help.

The Grossman Burn Foundation (GBF) is renowned for assisting needy families around the world in the areas of health care, safety and education.

The GBF mission is to expand medical opportunities in developing countries by facilitating world-class medical care to those who suffer from debilitating injuries, burn and congenital deformities that have left them physically impaired.

The GBF is equally committed to addressing critical situations in the United States and various countries around the world such as Afghanistan and Indonesia where the health status of local villagers—particularly Afghan women—ranks among the worst in the world. Dr. Peter Grossman and Rebecca Grossman sit on a special Afghan Woman's Health Committee in Washington D.C. which was formed by the Undersecretary of the United States, Paula Dobriansky. According to the World Health Organization, many of these underdeveloped areas have a mortality rate from burn injuries that exceeds tuberculosis, malaria and HIV/AIDS altogether.

In addition to supporting severe burn victims, the foundation currently is engaged in a number of high-profile projects throughout the world:

- International Burn Center: The GBF helped to launch the first highly specialized nonprofit Reconstructive Surgery and Burn Center in Kabul, Afghanistan, which opened in December, 2008. - State of the Art Diagnostic Technology: GBF's Dr. Peter Grossman was instrumental in developing a real-time satellite technology software program for a company called Global Relief Technologies. It allows burn surgeons to assist emergency first responders in remote parts of the world or in a crises situation using high-tech telemedicine equipment.

The software program was developed to provide real-time aid to military physicians and burn surgeons treating burn victims. Through handheld satellite communication devices, it also can be used for humanitarian organizations and military personnel in remote areas of the world.
