Pt VI-A, Line 6 ISES is a membership organization. There are no stockholders.
Any individual with a professional interest in exposure analysis/science is invited to join. In December 2009 there were 617 members in good standing: 64% of these members are in the United States and the remainder represent 37 countries.

Pt VI-A, Line 7a Members elect members of the governing body (officers and councilors) annually.

Pt VI-A, Line 7b Members vote on changes on the organization's bylaws and other propositions deemed by the governing body to warrant a membership vote.

Pt VI-B, Line 11a Form 990 will be distributed electronically to all governing body members upon filing.

Pt VI-C, Line 19 The organization's bylaws are available on a publicly available page on its website: www.isesweb.org. Financial statements are reported and distributed once per year to the membership at its annual meeting and are available to any member upon request. Quarterly financial statements are distributed to and reviewed by members of the governing body each quarter.

Pt XI Deferred revenue not previously recognized recognized.

International Society of Exposure Science – 22-3022846

Form 990 Part III - Statement of Program Service Accomplishments

1. Briefly describe the organization's mission:

To foster and advance the science of exposure analysis related to environmental contaminants, both for human populations and ecosystems; to promote communication among exposure analysts, epidemiologists, toxicologists, and other scientists; to recommend approaches to substantive or methodological concerns; and strengthen the impact of exposure assessment and analysis on environmental policy.

Official Journal

Expenses: $81,088, including grants of $15,000 Revenue $0

--- The official journal of the ISES is the Journal of Exposure Science and Environmental Epidemiology. All members receive a one-year subscription to this bi-monthly, peer-reviewed journal for each year of membership. Members of the Society maintain editorial control of the journal. The Editor-in-Chief and Associate Editors for Reviews are Society members. The Society pays the journal publisher, Nature Publishing Group, a per-copy cost for each issue mailed to members. There is no difference in the cost for providing the issue to members inside or outside the U.S. The Society paid the journal publisher $13.00 per copy for all 2010 issues. ISES may solicit funding for publication of additional issues on special topics or to ensure timely publication of accepted material. In 2010 an additional issue, funded by the American Chemistry Council, was published in May and mailed to all members to ensure timely publication of accepted peer-reviewed articles. The funding from the American Chemistry Council covered the cost to provide this issue to members. In FY 2010, a total of 3,258 copies of these journal issues were mailed to members, including the special issue.

Early Career Award

Expenses: $33,120 Revenue $0

--- The ISES Early Career Award in the area of human exposure analysis, sponsored by the American Chemistry Council's Long-Range Initiative, awarded one-time grants to three early career scientists in 2002, 2003, and 2004 through a competitive process. The purpose of the program is to encourage persons beginning their professional careers to conduct research on various challenging issues related to human exposure analysis. The program is intended to enhance career development for investigators at academic or other public or private non-private institutions in North America, encourage innovative research, and strengthen the dialogue between the Council and the research community. The funds have been used to defray a variety of costs associated with research investigations, such as salaries of investigators, students, and technicians, support for sample analyses, travel, equipment, supplies, and costs associated with publishing. In FY 2010, ISES transferred Early Career Award funds to the 2002 awardee's institution for the next stage of her research, reimbursed the 2003 awardee for travel expenses incurred to present his research, and paid its secretariat office for costs to administer the program in FY 2010.

Student Travel and Achievement Awards

Expenses: $19,350 Revenue $0

--- An active Student and New Researcher Committee organizes special recognition at the ISES annual meeting for student abstracts and promotes interaction with peers and mentors during the conference and through the internet throughout the year. One hundred forty-two students (15.4% of participants) attended the 2010 annual conference, which was held jointly with the International Society for Environmental Epidemiology. ISES provided $18,400 in travel awards to ISES student members attending the conference and presenting their scientific work through posters. A poster competition for ISES students also provided $950 in cash awards for the most outstanding poster presentations.

2009 Annual Conference Management

Expenses: $15,446 Revenue $0 (grants reported in FY2009)

--- ISES holds an annual conference each year. The annual conference brings together scientists from throughout the world to exchange ideas and methods for research in exposure science. It provides a forum for communicating current epidemiologic research, facilitates international collaboration in research and training, and highlights emerging global environmental health issues. Most ISES annual conferences are held in the United States, but approximately every 3 to 4 years a meeting is held outside North America to provide access for the international membership. For its meetings in the U.S., ISES has contracted with a conference management firm to manage meeting logistics. The 2009 annual conference was held in Minneapolis, MN, November 1-5, 2009. There were 355 participants from the US and other countries at this conference. The theme of the meeting was Transforming Exposure Science in the 21st Century. The annual conference is also held jointly with the International Society for Environmental Epidemiology every 2 or 3 years.

25th Anniversary Project: Exposure Science Digests

Expenses: $12,177 Revenue $0

--- In August 2009, the Society and the publisher and editor-in-chief of the society journal, in recognition of ISES's 25th year, initiated an endeavor to recognize historic successes of exposure science and its contributions to understanding environmental exposures, improving public health, advancing risk management, informing other related disciplines, and impacting policy. Members were invited to nominate topics and authors for a series of short mini-review papers, called Exposure Science Digests, for publication in the journal, Journal of Exposure Science and Environmental Epidemiology (JESEE). A selection committee including the journal editor-in-chief and editorial board members evaluated the nominations and selected and invited the authors and topics. All manuscripts were subjected to peer review. ISES hired a consultant, an exposure scientist, to assist with this project, including participating on the selection committee and liaising between the authors and the editorial board, managing development and completion of each mini-review. The ISES paid the consultant a total of $12,177 in FY 2010. The Exposure Science Digests were published in 2010 and 2011 issues of JESEE, and the selection committee, with the assistance of the ISES Strategic Planning Committee, is implementing a communications plan surrounding these mini-reviews.

2010 Annual Conference Management

Expenses: $13,304 including grants of $12,000 Revenue $0

--- ISES holds an annual conference each year. The annual conference brings together scientists from throughout the world to exchange ideas and methods for research in exposure science. It provides a forum for communicating current epidemiologic research, facilitates international collaboration in research and training, and highlights emerging global environmental health issues. Most ISES annual conferences are held in the United States, but approximately every 3 to 4 years a meeting is held outside North America to provide access for the international membership. The annual meeting is also held jointly with the International Society for Environmental Epidemiology (ISEE) every 2 or 3 years. In 2010, ISES held a joint conference with the ISEE in Seoul, Korea, August August 28 – September 1, 2010. The theme of the conference was “Technology, Environmental Sustainability and Health.” There were 923 participants representing 45 countries.

Messaging

Expenses: $8,500 Revenue $0

-- ISES hired a professional organization in FY09 to develop standard messaging and proof points to more clearly and effectively describe exposure science and help advance it. These were developed for use by the broader exposure science community in grant applications and other communications about their research in exposure science. ISES paid this organization $8,500 in FY 2010. The ISES Strategic Planning Committee is implementing an action plan for disseminating these messages to policy makers and decision makers to inform them about the value of exposure science and the important of including exposure science in their work.

Scientific Achievement Awards Program

Expenses: $5,769 Revenue $0

-- ISES recognizes outstanding scientists with four awards. Most of these awarded annually. The ISES Awards Committee publicizes the awards through the society website, email, and other channels, reviews and selects the awardees, and administers the awards. The Jerome J. Wesolowski Award recognizes outstanding contributions to the knowledge and practice of human exposure assessment. The awardee receives $2500 and presents the Wesolowski Lecture at the ISES annual conference. The Joan M. Daisey Outstanding Young Scientist Award recognizes outstanding contributions to the membership for one year and $1000. The Constance L. Mehlman Award science of human exposure analysis by a young scientist. The awardee receives ISES recognizes outstanding contributions in exposure analysis research that helped shape a national or state policy or that provided new approaches for reduction or prevention of exposures. This award is presented every other year or less frequently, based on nominations received. The awardee receives $2000. The DGUV/IPA Award for Young Exposure Scientists fosters research in exposure areas with linkages to biomonitoring for superior doctoral students working on their dissertation or superior first-year postdoctoral exposure scientists. This award, provided by the DGUV Institute for Prevention and Occupational Medicine (IPA) in Germany, is administered by ISES. The awardee receives 1500 Euros and may be invited to give a talk in Europe on his/her research. Nominations for each of these awards are solicited annually from the membership, and the awards are presented at the annual ISES conference.

Web Site

Expenses: $1,086 --- The ISES web site may be accessed by any interested party. The web site contains information about the history and organization of the society, e.g., officers and councilors, committees, by-laws, the current Society conference; employment opportunities, other events of interest, Society awards, a section for students and new researchers, and special sections devoted to the Society's Distinguished Lecturer Program and Exposure Science Glossary. The glossary is provided as a service to the scientific community. The web site also includes externally hosted password-protected pages available to current members only, providing electronic access to the Society journal and a searchable membership directory, and allowing members to join or renew their memberships and pay dues online through a secure credit card processor. In FY 2010, ISES paid for setup of the standalone conference website for the 2011 conference, which will be held in Baltimore, MD, October. 23-27, 2011, and paid annual hosting fees for its society website. Routine website management expenses were absorbed into JSI management fees in FY2010.

Distinguished Lecturer Program

Expenses: $0

--- The ISES Distinguished Lecturer Program was developed to stimulate interest and enhance recognition of exposure analysis science. The program makes outstanding speakers in the science of exposure analysis available to qualifying institutions and organizations. The ISES sponsors the travel of the Distinguished Lecturers as needed. In FY 2010, there were no expenses for this program, as the Distinguished Lecturers performed their work pro bono.
