Over 50 Years of Personal Growth
and Spiritual Exploration

Schedule A Part IV :
Explanation How Organization Meets the 10% Facts and Circumstances Test

Shadybrook's membership drive begins each November for the following year. Letters soliciting new memberships and membership renewals are mailed out to the organization's full mailing list, which includes current members, people interested in the organization who are not members, and a number of local organizations. The letter is also printed in the winter newsletter, which is handed out at public events, as well as being sent out to the mailing list. Announcements of open enrollment are made at Shadybrook events during that time, most of which are widely advertised and open to the public.

Shadybrook is funded by a well-managed endowment, supplemented by income from membership donations and fees charged for programs. It has a governing board which oversees the operations of the organization, including deciding how best to serve the public. The organization hosts programs, workshops, seminars, and retreats that promote personal growth and spiritual exploration. Shadybrook subsidizes their programs to make them easily affordable, in some cases asking for donations rather than charging fees. Most of Shadybrook's events are widely advertised and open to the public. The exceptions would be a couple of social events each year that are for the members.

Anyone is welcome to become a member of Shadybrook, and although a scale of membership fees is set, a donation of any amount submitted with a membership form is acceptable. The organization believes that a lack of money should not keep interested participants from taking part in Shadybrook activities. The purpose of membership fees is to raise money to continue offering affordable programs for members and the public.
