Kerzner Marine Foundation 2009-2011 Grant Submission Guidelines

Strategic Focus

The strategic focus of Kerzner Marine Foundation (KMF) is protecting the integrity of tropical marine ecosystems which are becoming increasingly threatened due to overexploitation and overpopulation. The Foundation seeks applications for programs that will produce specific and measurable results related to KMF's program strategy within a two- to three-year timeframe. Priority will be placed on projects that include the development and management of marine protected areas, coral reef conservation, and cetacean conservation and research in the Caribbean, Middle East, and Southeast Asia.

Conservation success ultimately depends on the capacity of local individuals and organizations and a thorough understanding of the effect of globalization on the region. To protect the world's most biologically diverse aquatic areas, poverty and the expansion of extractive industries must be addressed. Thus we encourage our applicants to partner with organizations whose areas of expertise will complement their conservation and research proficiency including those that specialize in poverty alleviation, enterprise development, conflict management, capacity building, and food security.

The success of conservation programs also relies on research that generates results that are applicable to solving complex conservation questions. We recommend that scientists involve local NGOs, universities, and/or research facilities in-situ in their research programs. This type of collaboration and mentoring will help build the capacity of the local people and develop a mechanism to share findings.

Program Focus

1) Coral Reefs

Problem Statement: Coral reefs are the most biologically diverse marine ecosystem. Unfortunately it is estimated that more than 60% of reefs are jeopardized due to human impacts including overfishing and pollution. A recent report released by the World Resources Institute has found that in the Caribbean alone, two thirds of coral reefs are threatened and one third are vulnerable to coastal development. Poor management practices make coral reef habitats even more susceptible to human influence. In addition, many local communities living adjacent to reefs have limited access to economic opportunities which leads to their increasing reliance on coral reef resources and further reef degradation. To reduce pressure on coral reefs, local communities must have access to more short- and long-term economic alternatives. If local communities have food security and their basic needs are met, they are much more likely to be receptive to conservation efforts.

Potential Conservation Activities

- Addressing and managing human-caused threats to coral reef viability including sediment runoff, overfishing, coastal development, tourism, pollution, cruise ship waste, sewage discharge, and destructive fishing practices
- Employing multiple strategies to manage coral reef resources

- Monitoring water quality
- Building local capacity to manage coral reef ecosystems
- Facilitating the inclusion of all stakeholders in the development of management plans

Potential Research Activities

- Studying the effects of coral bleaching
- Documenting the spread of coral diseases
- Mapping impacts
- Identifying and protecting spawning aggregations
- Improving habitat quality in degraded areas

2) Marine Protected Areas

Problem Statement: Population explosion and the resulting unrelenting demand for more natural resources is leading to the unprecedented loss of biodiversity, the disappearance and fragmentation of habitat, an increase in invasive species, and climate change. All of these threats are placing increasing burdens on our remaining wild areas as well as unprecedented stress on areas already "preserved." Creating, implementing, and managing Marine Protected Areas (MPAs) is one strategy that can be used in concert with other conservation practices to protect marine ecosystems.

Potential Conservation Activities

- Promoting the creation of a network of marine protected areas
- Establishing marine protected areas
- Developing MPA management plans
- Creating MPA zoning strategies
- Identifying and addressing impacts of coastal land use on adjacent waters
- Building the capacity for marine ecosystem management
- Ensuring MPA sustainability
- Facilitating stakeholder involvement in MPAs

Potential Research Activities

- Creating and documenting the effects of no-take zones
- Prioritizing areas to receive protection
- Analyzing the social and economic impact of MPAs
- Monitoring and evaluating resource management success

3) Cetaceans

Problem Statement: Despite years of research and conservation work, relatively little is known about the more than 80 species of cetaceans due to difficulty in studying them in the wild. Yet like all other marine species they are affected by a multitude of threats including entanglement in fishing gear, pollution, habitat destruction, collisions with ships, and overfishing. Some species are nearing extinction such as the baiji, North Atlantic right whale, and the vaquita. And in some areas, local populations of some species are threatened or have entirely disappeared.

Basic research still needs to be conducted and political, social, and economical factors that affect cetaceans must be continually analyzed and addressed.

Potential Conservation Activities

- Identifying areas of habitat destruction
- Creating marine protected areas
- Studying the effects of overfishing on populations
- Establishing collaborative conservation plans

Potential Research Activities

- Assessing population sizes
- Monitoring health hazards
- Establishing accurate take levels
- Determining range and migration patterns
- Identifying feeding patterns

Conservation Approach

Within each focus areas, the following approaches should be considered:

- Field research
- Mapping and monitoring
- Sustainable development
- Public outreach
- Restoration
- Science-based advocacy
- Governance
- Capacity building

Program Parameters

KMF expects applicants to specify how, under their proposed activities, they will promote achievement of the results proposed. A successful proposal will address the following key areas.

1. Focus on in-situ efforts to conserve habitats and populations within the Caribbean, Middle East, or Southeast Asia
2. Create results-oriented programs offering measurable results within two to three years or generate scientific findings with conservation applicability
3. Demonstrate local support
4. Partner with local NGOs, universities, local communities, and/or the private sector to transfer scientific findings and/or conservation skills or to leverage resources
5. Offer sound implementation plans, including a strategy for ensuring sustainability of the conservation effort or conservation applicability of research results

Application Guidelines
