Immigration - HCMU began our legal immigration program in 2000 after receiving reports about predatory organizations that provided impossible guarantees for success while charging exorbitant prices. HCMU provides affordable and high-quality legal services and consultations both in Salt Lake City and throughout the state of Utah. The majority of our clients are women and families who have experienced domestic abuse and other violent crimes. We help them escape the cycle of violence and become contributing members of the community by helping them gain legal residency and starting them on a pathway toward success. In 2010, we managed 2,028 cases, adding 1,500 new clients.

Education - HCMU's education department provides preschool, after-school and summer programs for low-income minority students in Park City and Wendover, Utah. Our programs in partnership with United Way, Tooele and Park City School Districts provide high-quality enrichment programs, tutoring and education, physical activities and arts education to ensure that these children stay active, motivated and confident. We also offer parent education classes to help families become more involved with their children's schooling; teachers report Latino parents' attendance at conferences is much higher among families served by HCMU. The promotoras provide a wide range of services across Salt Lake, Summit and Tooele counties, including weekly professional prenatal classes in a variety of locations; education on healthy lifestyles and other issues of concern for mothers; assistance with applications for insurance, government aid and other assistance; individual life skills consultations; referrals to counseling programs and/or clinics; support groups for families of special needs children; and ongoing Part III, Line 4d Counseling - low-income, uninsured families rarely have access to mental health services so the need is significant. HCMU works to address this need by providing a counseling program at four Catholic Salt Lake schools serving over 1,400 children and their families. The primary aim is to recognize and address the emotional needs of students who are affected by stress, bullying, violence or abuse, grief or other common youth issues. Regular classroom sessions are provided to help prevent bullying and promote healthy lifestyles for students. The counseling program also provides assistance to women who are victims of serious emotional and physical abuse. This program is especially helpful to women who don't speak English, as HCMU provides bilingual counseling that is difficult to find elsewhere. Bilingual counseling services have been provided to 11 families in 2010.

Part III, Line 4d Parish/Community Health - HCMU's parish health program provides quarterly basic health screenings and flu vaccine clinics at six of the poorest parishes in the state. The program also encompasses regular visits to 125 homebound seniors. Many of the clients who attend the screenings, which check blood pressure and blood sugar levels, have never seen a doctor and are unaware of their potential health concerns.

In Utah, the Latino population faces unique challenges in accessing health care, including transportation, language and cultural barriers and socioeconomic difficulties. Our

Parish Health program is determined to help poor and vulnerable individuals access the health care they need. In addition, we provide pastoral services and bereavement counseling for individuals who have faced severe trauma or lost family members. In 2010 the program provided 2,591 tests, 272

Pt VI-B, Line 15 The Executive Director of Holy Cross Ministries of Utah (HCMU) is a Sister of the Holy Cross and is not compensated. The performance of the Executive Director of HCMU is evaluated by the Executive Committee of HCMU; that report is presented to the entire board of HCMU as is described in the applicable policy.

Pt VI-C, Line 19 Governing documents, conflict of interest policy and financial statements are available to the public upon request, as indicated on the organization's website.

Part III, Line 4d Counseling - low-income, uninsured families rarely have access to mental health services so the need is significant. HCMU works to address this need by providing a counseling program at four Catholic Salt Lake schools serving over 1,400 children and their families. The primary aim is to recognize and address the emotional needs of students who are affected by stress, bullying, violence or abuse, grief or other common youth issues. Regular classroom sessions are provided to help prevent bullying and promote healthy lifestyles for students. The counseling program also provides assistance to women who are victims of serious emotional and physical abuse. This program is especially helpful to women who don't speak English, as HCMU provides bilingual counseling that is difficult to find elsewhere. Bilingual counseling services have been provided to 11 families in 2010.

a doctor and are unaware of their potential health concerns.

individuals access the health care they need. In addition,

we provide pastoral services and bereavement counseling for

referrals and 300 reduced-cost flu shots.
