Cedars HOPE currently provides affordable, permanent supportive housing to 16 women with mental illness living in two intentional communities. An intentional community is a community in which un-related individuals with a common need agree to live together in an environment of respect, cooperation and mutual support. The Cedars HOPE model of intentional communities fosters psychiatric and housing stability, self-sufficiency, and growth. Within this model, Cedars HOPE staff provides supportive services that help our residents break the cycle of psychiatric crisis and homelessness, maintain their independence and improve self esteem. We provide supportive staff that monitor and assist our residents with developing symptom and illness self-management skills. Staff is also available to help residents maintain or learn new skills necessary for successful daily living.
