Attachment: Minnesota Coalition for Battered Women Key Accomplishments

The leadership of MCBW, the statewide domestic violence coalition in Minnesota, is essential to ensure quality services for victims and sustainable social change to prevent violence against women. MCBW leverages resources by providing networking and convening opportunities for local domestic violence service programs, by engaging in public policy reforms on a statewide level, and by serving as a voice for local programs and the victims they serve at the statewide and national levels. MCBW engages statewide and national stakeholders to collaboratively address the root causes and social norms that contribute to violence. The scope of the work of MCBW is intentionally broad in order to provide leadership that integrates local, state and national programs, laws, and policies to end violence against women.

- Promote quality services for victims that focus on safety and self-determination. MCBW achieves this by providing training and technical assistance for member programs to support improvement in services and implementation of best practice models and evidence based programs. MCBW also assists members in addressing emerging issues such as sustainability, meeting the complex needs of victims with mental health and substance abuse issues, providing culturally competent services for victims in immigrant communities, and integrating diverse community partners in efforts to end violence against women.
- Advocate and educate on behalf of victims, their children, and those who assist them, mobilizing a statewide voice on violence against women. MCBW serves as a statewide voice for victims and their needs, coordinating awareness and media campaigns, general public education and state prevention and education efforts.
- Engage in prevention activities to involve all levels of the community in ending violence against women. MCBW promotes culture change at a local, state and national level to shift social attitudes and policies that support a culture of violence. Primary prevention activities include engaging youth, men, cultural institutions and community-based organizations through educational programs, social marketing campaigns, awareness events and community organizing.
- Engage in social change efforts that challenge the social, economic and political conditions that sustain a culture of violence in which domestic and sexual violence is condoned. MCBW recognizes that domestic and sexual violence are connected to other forms of oppression, such as sexism, racism and homophobia, and that only by addressing systemic abuses of power within communities will violence against women ever be effectively eliminated. By challenging existing biases in traditionally male-dominated response systems such as law enforcement, prosecution, the judiciary and healthcare, MCBW fosters understanding of the power differentials on both the societal and individual levels that contribute to violence against and marginalization of people subject to societal prejudice, discrimination and isolation.
- Facilitate partnerships among victim advocates, allied organizations, and state agencies. MCBW staff members serve on statewide commissions, committees and task forces in order to ensure that the realities of the lives of victims, and the needs of local advocates providing direct services, are represented in the development of statewide responses to domestic and sexual violence. MCBW supports the creation of multi-disciplinary response teams and other innovative criminal justice and social services collaborations to respond to battered women and their children. MCBW also partners with other community services providers to advocate for strengthening of social safety net programs, on which victims often rely for basic needs, promoting overall community well-being.

- Connect local, state and national work. MCBW provides a critical bridge between the work of local advocates providing direct services, statewide policy makers, and federal responses to violence against women. Through our statewide membership and regular convening and meetings with member programs, MCBW relays the challenges and successes of local work to the national level, and conveys best practices emerging at the national level to local member programs. The work of the Coalition is informed by the needs and realities of programs working at the local level, serving as a conduit for information to and from the field, informing statewide and national stakeholders on practice-based evidence.
