The Corporation is organized and operated solely for charitable and educational purposes within the meaning of Section 501(c) (3) of the Internal Revenue Code. The Corporation's primary specific purpose is to support therapeutic justice for alcohol and drug addicted offender in Alaska's criminal justice system. Often referred to as "treatment with teeth," the common denominator of all therapeutic justice programs is the combination of 1) assistance to help the offender address underlying problems with 2) the coercive power of the court or correctional system. Therapeutic justice protects the public and reduces harm by intervening in dangerous and self-destructive lives.

Partners for Progress coordinates with the Alaska Court System and state administrative agents to provide an integrated program of essential therapeutic court support services. Corporation funds supplement but do not supplant other therapeutic court funding. Specific services provided by Partners for Progress include court ordered group treatment, specialized professional training for group facilitators and therapeutic court team members, housing assistance and sobriety monitoring for indigent participants, and emergent needs of therapeutic courts and therapeutic justice programs

Form 990, Part III, Line 4d - All Other Accomplishment

Therapeutic courts check the downward cycle of repeat drug and alcohol addicted offenders by combining the coercive power of the court with assistance and services that offer program participants a clear and workable pathway to a better life. This process involves the participants in a way that builds a lasting sense of responsibility. Built on the national drug court model, Anchorage's Wellness Court has served as an example for the rest of the state. Since the Wellness Court was started in 1999, similar therapeutic courts have been established in Bethel, Juneau, Ketchikan, Palmer and Fairbanks. The program has received funding from the U.S. Department of Justice, the U.S. Department of Transportation, the State of Alaska and other sources. This funding has been used in cooperation with the Alaska Court System and other entities to provide a combination of addiction treatment, assistance, monitoring and
