Innovation Program For decades, the United States has benefited from being home to the pre-eminent medical innovation ecosystem in the world. This has ensured access to cutting-edge treatment options for the nation's citizens, has fueled the economy by being a major driver of small business and job creation, and has represented a significant and critical component of the nation's overall global technological leadership. The ultimate goal of the 501(c)(3) non-profit Fogarty Institute for Innovation is to support medical innovation to benefit patients. As a necessary consequence of this effort, the Institute addresses the factors threatening the nation's medical innovation ecosystem head-on. The unique approach of the Institute is to identify innovations that have especially high potential for patient benefit. Through its flagship Innovation Support program, the Fogarty Institute receives applications for support from a broad candidate pool that includes physicians, students, engineers, and entrepreneurs. Innovations having the greatest potential for patient benefit are selected, and the Institute supports the innovator's efforts to deliver their innovations to patients. The types of support provided to selected innovators by the Institute include (a) direct mentoring by Dr. Fogarty and other members of the mentor staff in the process of medical innovation and development, (b) significant, unfettered access to El Camino Hospital physicians and facilities that provides innovators with invaluable information that guides medical technology development, (c) laboratory/engineering space, (d) financial aid, and (e) access to the Institute's network of clinical experts. The Institute's lab space is currently devoted to the development of medical technologies that address a range of conditions, and these include skin ulcers caused by poorly functioning veins in the legs, heart disease, hearing loss and neonatal resuscitation.

Grants and awards in support of medical education and innovation. Education Program Through its Education program, the Fogarty Institute makes its unique mentoring capability available to a much larger audience than is possible with the Innovation Support program by providing workshops, seminars and internships to interested members of the medical innovation, clinician, and entrepreneur communities. In this way, we hope to not only support active innovators, but also inspire the next generation of medical innovators - such as college and high school students - who may be considering a career in medical innovation.

Identifier	Return Reference	Explanation
Grantmaker's Description of How Grants are Used		Through its on-line application process, and rigorous physician-driven review process, the Fogarty Institute selects the very best medical innovations - those having the greatest potential to benefit patients. Applications for support come from a broad candidate pool that includes physicians, students, engineers, nurses, and entrepreneurs. Once they begin their residence at the Institute, innovators meet regularly - typically twice per month - with a designated Institute point-of-contact to review progress towards agreed upon milestones. Additionally, innovators report to the full Institute leadership, including members of the board of directors, after residing at the Institute 6 and 12 months. In these ways, innovator progress and use of grant funds are constantly monitored. If progress within a reasonable amount of time is deemed inadequate, or use of funds inappropriate, the supported program is terminated, and funds and resources are re-directed.
