4a

(Code) (Expenses $ including grants of $) (Revenue $)

Lobbying/representation efforts - OOIDA maintains a Washington, DC office and employs 4 full-time government affairs representatives. These staff members, as well as various employees at the OOIDA headquarters, work with congressional representatives to ensure the interests of professional truckers are considered in legislative and regulatory forums on a federal and state level. The government affairs staff educates elected officials on all trucking matters.

4b

(Code) (Expenses $ including grants of $) (Revenue $)

Legal representation - OOIDA further represents the interests of the membership by filing lawsuits against various entities when the rights of truckers have been violated. For example, OOIDA has battled several motor carriers in court over violations of truth in leasing regulations. There is no federal agency to enforce the provisions of the truth in leasing regulations. As such, professional drivers must use the private right of action to enforce these provisions. Because such actions can be very costly for an individual, OOIDA has taken several of these cases on behalf of members. In addition, OOIDA has filed suit against various states and agencies for violations of civil rights and for discriminatory practices and taxes. OOIDA has been successful in recovering settlements for members who have been wronged.

4c

(Code) (Expenses $ including grants of $) (Revenue $)

OOIDA participates in the First Observer highway security program administered by the Transportation Security Administration. The mission of First Observer is to promote the security of our critical infrastructure within the United States by training people to observe, assess and report risks and security breaches.
