Kenya. Organized women to for micro-business enterprise to provide econmic strength for themselves and their families. The initial raw materials were provided for each woman registered in the program. Business skills and instructions were provided by WTTW, including purchasing, marketing, inventory control, and money management. More than 360 women are enjoying the freedom of owning their own business, offering a service or product to their community, and providing for themselves and their families a source for nutrition, healthcare, and education for relatives within the household. These beneficiaries are all heads of households. Training in jewelry making and marketing has been the focus for economic strength for women heads of households. In the slums of Kenya, 155 orphans have been sponsored by Americans. These orphans were rescued from the streets, most HIV positive and have food, clothes, beds and beddings. Teachers are provided for street children in the Mathare/Barb Slum Districts. Rooms have been added to the school, with purified water, protein added to the barley mush, and protection for the girls. Vans were provided for field trips into the city of Nairobi, exposing the orphans to green space, live animals, and clean air. Additional rooms were added to the facility for protected sleeping compounds by both sexes. WTTW provides security for the girls. More than 1500 children were provided protein in the Mathare partner slum, a school organized by Johnson Wambua.

4b (Code:) (Expenses $ 26890 including grants of $) (Revenue $)
Burkina Faso, Africa
At the Academy, students are taught computer literacy, business education, language, as well as reading and math. Many of these students have escaped sex trafficking, and most female student have suffered genital mutilation. Education should minimize this practice for future generations. Of the 1100 students enrolled, 165 graduated and 80% of those earned scholarships to the University of Ouagadougou, Burkina Faso, Africa.
In the villages, more than 600 women were taught to purify water for drinking, conserve water used in agriculture and horticulture. A decrease in child mortality has already been measurable. Improved methods of agriculture, horticulture, animal husbandry have increased the food production for village woman. Six bulls and 14 cows have been provided to the villages - for reproduction, plowing in the fieds, and sale of milk-related products. Villagers in the four chosen villages now live in peace with one another, forming co-ops and assisted planning has supported this effort for peace and community support.
Near the Ghana border, a feasible study journey of 10 professionals proved the need for wells and organized farming co-ops. Funds have been acquired for two wells to be constructed in 2012.

Athens, Georgia
Partnering Ambassadors for Life and Service (PALS) offers classroom training for Computer Literacy, GED preparation, survival skills, and Literacy for disenfranchised women escaping drug and spousal abuse. Most are heads of households, single-parents with perceived needs for further education and skill traling. Most beneficiaries have found gainful employment, earned their GED, and are no longer dependent on government subsidies. Women to the World is the source for Athens Council on Aging Training Program for women in the category for employment and further training. More than six women have been subsidized through such programs. Four women working in the WTTW office have, with resume assistance from WTTW, found full-time employment, or have found a valuable role to play in the PALS Program through the four-part developmental plan. The University of Georgia and Athens Technical Institute has chosen Women to the World as a valued partner for Internships. A contract has been entered into with the partner, Athens Housing Authority for a long-term project for women's inter-city development and franchisement. Three adjoining counties are asking for the PALS Program. Funding is pending for 2012-2013.

Afghanistan Project: Due to the security issues, Women to the World has chosen to continue serving the Hazara women through community health training, and Literacy. The Women to the World Compound has been sustained, even in light of severe threats and enemy intervention for women. Since 2002, Women to the World has successfully built trust and maintained a long-term relationship with communities and partners within the Kabul communities. Sewing machines have been provided for women within this community, as well as the continuation of computer skill training for both men and women. Women to the World has been instrumental in distribution of aid by U.S. Military, having strategic relationships with community leaders throughout the city. Literacy for widows and orphans is the focus. (See www.womentotheworld.org) Local partners continue to solidify a continuance of services through WTW for at-risk women and female children. Beneficiaries - 125 for 2011.

Turkey Women's Project: Feasibility and Micro-Business Training, Mersin, Turkey - Kurdish Women's Skill Training Feasibility Program: Since 1985, Women to the World has been developing relationships for developmental training for Kurdish women living near Syria. Training Materials, Schedule Implementation, Teaching Skill Training, and Dr. Paul DeLargy's "Entrepreneurial Business Leadership" Trainin was proposed and accepted by the Turkish Government. Training is to begin in 2013. Security stresses may prolong the beginning of this program, due to difficulties in reaching the women most in need of the training. Mersin is the area of launch, and all trainers are prepared and standing in place for the implementation.
