Expenses: $18,619

The work of the Midwife Program is prevention: to help women avoid unwanted pregnancies, to recognize potential reproductive health problems, to educate women, families, youth, and community members and to refer women to health facilities before serious problems develop. Women at-risk for problems during birthing are encouraged to give birth in health facilities. Midwives are trained through the accompaniment of mentors who are nurses from health centers serving the communities. Teaching courses, regular meetings, and on-going relationships of accompaniment and friendship provide support to midwives as they continue, as they have throughout history, to attend low-risk births.
