An extensive Conflicts of Interest Policy was adopted in April 2001 and revised in April 2004. 	Form 990, Part VI, Section B, line 15	Annually, the CEO prepares performance reviews for all senior managers and key employees. The CEO presents this information to the Compensation Committee, along with his recommendations for compensation increases. The Compensation Committee considers this information. The Compensation Committee also considers the review of the performance of the CEO as presented by the Chair of the Board of Directors. The Compensation Committee engages an external compensation consulting firm to assist it in its review of the level of compensation and benefits for senior executives and key employees. The compensation consultants accumulate and present to the Compensation Committee market information for each senior executive position, summarize individual executive compensation and benefits packages and benchmark that information to the industry information they have accumulated. The Compensation Committee considers the performance review presented, comparisons of total compensation by executive to market compensation percentiles for industry executives with similar job titles and/or skill sets, retention needs in light of organizational plans for growth and expansion and organizational needs in terms of meeting the challenges of the unique business of providing senior care services. The independent board members who populate the Compensation Committee are skilled executives in their own right with substantial business experience and an excellent understanding of the business of senior care. The Compensation Committee approves, or modifies and then approves the CEO's recommendations for salary and benefit increases for senior management. The Compensation Committee considers the performance of the CEO as described and evaluated by the Board Chair and determines, independent of the CEO, the change(s) in CEO compensation and benefits to be implemented. In doing this, the Compensation Committee works with an external compensation consulting firm that accumulates and presents to the Committee a broad range of compensation and benefits information pertaining directly to the CEO position, including benchmark information regarding comparative compensation and benefits by quartile. The Committee also considers the value of industry experience, organizational familiarity and knowledge, and executive retention in light of organizational plans for growth, strategic expansion and organizational needs in meeting the challenges of the unique business of providing senior care services. Compensation Committee proceedings are contemporaneously documented and minutes are maintained and on file at Corporate headquarters.
