MARAMA reviews grant applications prior to award to ensure established criteria will be met. To monitor performance, MARAMA maintains regular contacts with recipients.

In addition, for program grant assistance, quarterly reports are required.

Technology deployment grants are awarded to reduce diesel emissions and consist of a rebate for documented expenses for emission control equipment or the incremental cost of cleaner fuels, or a partial payment towards a larger expenditure for engine or vehicle replacement. Payment is contingent on proof of expenses for approved technology and, if applicable, proof that any engine or vehicle being replaced has been scrapped to prevent future use. MARAMA's funding agencies do not require monitoring after the project is completed, and payment is released.
