Memberships & Educational Resources See Schedule O for Program Service descriptionAPA is an education not-for-profit and many of our educational services are provided free of charge. APA membership is voluntary and open to any individual interested in the field of planning. Our monthly magazine focuses on information about trends, current planning practices, and new approaches, reviews of books, reports, and events in both private and public sectors. The Journal of the American Planning Association is published quarterly to report on research, new thoughts, and current literature. It is edited independently through a university-based editorial team and has a worldwide subscription list. The Planning & Environmental Law periodical is published monthly and distills the latest court decisions and legislation regarding planning and environmental law. Every issue contains detailed abstracts of the most important new state and federal court decisions. The Zoning Practice periodical is published monthly and helps guide those who write and administer development codes, monitors all the latest trends in local land-use controls, and brings the reader current news and ordinance excerpts. Each quarter APA's Planning Advisory Service (PAS) publishes a new PAS report providing authoritative guidance on current issues and innovative practices. The Commissioner provides planning commissioners, planning and zoning board members, and other appointed and elected officials with practical features and tips. This quarterly publication is an invaluable training resource to assist those making critical decisions in the best interest of communities. APA celebrates excellence in planning through our Great Places in America program. Annually, APA recognizes 10 great neighborhoods, streets, and public spaces of exceptional character, quality, and planning. The neighborhoods, streets, and public spaces are suggested by residents or visitors. The National Planning Conference brings planners, planning commissioners, elected officials, educators, allied professionals, students and engaged citizens together in an assembly of sessions, workshops, and networking opportunities to gain knowledge of current community challenges and initiatives in the field of planning. The American Institute of Certified Planners' (AICP) Certification Maintenance program helps certified planners gain the knowledge and skills they need to remain current in the practice of planning. Community Planning Assistance Teams (CPAT) is a key AICP initiative. Through this program, a multidisciplinary team of expert planning professionals is paired with community members, key stakeholders, and relevant decision makers in a place-based initiative to foster community education, engagement, and empowerment. APA also produces audio conferences, webinars, training workshops, streaming videos and audio recordings to promote education about communities and planning.

Certification & Accreditation See Schedule O for Program Service descriptionAPA plays an integral role in the education and development of planners through the accreditation of academic planning programs. AICP is APA's Professional Institute that is focused on the certification of planners, setting standards for professional practice, encouraging professional development, promoting pro bono services, and ethical practice. Grants are provided to students who are pursuing higher education in the planning field, for professional study tours and for internships in communities. Students participate, along with professional planners with the AICP credential, to provide pro bono services to communities.

(Code) (Expenses $ 1,623,392 including grants of $) (Revenue $ 1,276,402)

Policy & Outreach Services See Schedule O for Program Service descriptionSince 1949, APA's program of independent applied research has resulted in practical, up-to-date information about best practices in urban and regional planning in the U.S. and internationally. The service translates basic university research and best practices into practical examples for both private and public sector entities. Research activities are supported by grants from foundations, non-governmental organizations, governmental agencies, and subscription revenue. APA educates planners on planning issues and advocates changes to planning practices that respond to the evolving needs of communities at all levels. The process of creating vital communities recognizes that change is inevitable but decline is not. APA's communications team educates media and the public about the importance of the relationship between good governance and good planning, the impacts of planning, and the role of planners and engaged citizens in shaping our nation's communities. It also recognizes successful initiatives and projects through the annual national planning awards program.

Description of Intended Use of Endowment Funds	Part V, Line 4	Description of the Intended Uses of the APA Foundation Proceeds are used for the Planning Foundation of American Planning Association for philanthropic activities, scholarships, hazard mitigation and post disaster planning and community equity programs
Description of Uncertain Tax Positions Under FIN 48	Part X	The Association is exempt from income taxes under the provisions of Section 501(c)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code and applicable state law. The accounting standard on accounting for uncertainty in income taxes addresses the determination of whether tax benefits claimed or expected to be claimed on a tax return should be recorded in the financial statements. Under this guidance, the Association may recognize the tax benefit from an uncertain tax position only if it is more likely than not that the tax position will be sustained on examination by taxing authorities, based on the technical merits of the position. Examples of tax positions include the tax-exempt status of the Association and various positions related to the potential sources of unrelated business taxable income (UBIT). The tax benefits recognized in the financial statements from such a position are measured based on the largest benefit that has a greater than 50 percent likelihood of being realized upon ultimate settlement. There were no unrecognized tax benefits identified or recorded as liabilities for the reporting periods presented in the financial statements. The Association files Form 990 in the U.S. federal jurisdiction and the State of Illinois. The Association is generally no longer subject to examination by the Internal Revenue Service for tax years before 2009.

	Form 990, Part VI, Section A, line 6	American Planning Association (APA) is organized as an association with members
	Form 990, Part VI, Section A, line 7a	Members of the American Planning Association, regardless of class, have the right to elect or appoint one or more members of the organization's governing body periodically or as vacancies arise
	Form 990, Part VI, Section B, line 11	The organization's management reviews the Form 990 in detail with their paid tax preparers. Subsequent to this review, the Form 990 is presented to the organization's independent audit committee for review and approval prior to filing with the IRS.
	Form 990, Part VI, Section B, line 12c	The organization's conflict of interest policy covers all officers, directors, trustees, and key employees. Annually these individuals are required to complete a conflict of interest questionnaire to disclose any potential or actual conflicts of interest they may have with the organization. Completed conflict of interest questionnaires are reviewed by the organization's CEO and Director of Leadership. If it is determined an actual conflict of interest exists, the individual with the conflict is excused from any discussion or vote on the matter for which they have a conflict.
	Form 990, Part VI, Section B, line 15a	The Executive Committee of the Board of Directors, an independent body, meets as needed to review and approve the compensation package of the organization's top management official. In determining the compensation of the top management official, the organization's board approves the compensation and the executive committee utilizes comparability data provided from a compensation survey and the Forms 990 of other organizations. The deliberations and decision making regarding the compensation package of the top management official are documented on a timely basis. The CEO approves the compensation for other officers. Comparability data and compensation surveys are used in the process. The deliberation and decision making regarding the compensation package of other officers are documented on a timely basis.
	Form 990, Part VI, Section C, line 19	The organization makes its governing documents, conflict of interest policy and financial statements available to the public via the organization's website.
