Identifier	Return Reference	Explanation
Explanation of Lobbying Activities	Part II-B, Line 1	AAFA advocates public policy issues that support its mission. From time to time, AAFA may state a position on specific legislation to legislators or other government employees who participate in the formulation of legislation or issue a "call to action" to the general public via its print, web-based and other communications to contact their legislators with a position on specific legislation. Lobbying activities are limited and do not constitute a substantial part of AAFA's activities. AAFA does not employ a paid lobbyist, however, AAFA is a member of a national association, the National Health Council, whose membership dues support limited lobbying activities. AAFA does not support candidates for public office or make political campaign donations.
