Provided direct service in our tri-fold program areas utilizing the services of AmeriCorps members. Through this program we sponsored 47 AmeriCorps volunteers who provided service to over 50 regional organizations and communities in the areas of Historic Preservation, Conservation and Heritage Tourism. Our members supervised and managed hundreds of additional volunteers, and improved over 1000 acres of public land. Our members and volunteers educated local communities on the danger of non-native invasive species and eradicated thousands of pounds of said species, planted thousands of trees, and cleaned river banks to name only a few of their conservation activities. Volunteers and members supported historic preservation through hands on efforts such as brick repointing, window repair, stabilization and maintenance efforts. Members and volunteers also supported heritage tourism by actively developing programs for local museums, doing outreach and education, archiving and interpreting for local museums and collections, and performing research and surveys of historic properties.

AFHA partnered with the USDA and local conservation entities to perform outreach and education about the dangers of spreading invasive species via camping and firewood removal. the STOMP program has reached thousands of citizens through print, radio, television, and roadside advertising. Educational materials and curricula are being developed to teach children and adults the danger of unintentionally helping to spread species into and out of our wilderness. Additionally, AFHA has been creating interpretive trails for conservation heritage areas within our region to help showcase various aspects of our unique flora. Interpretive signs and markers are being developed to help educate the public about diverse and unique ecosystems within the Appalachian Forests.
