Mothers & Babies - like most other non-profits is challenged by the continued decline in government support for programs During the past year, our Board and staff have continued to explore other venues for program support, it is difficult and time-consuming, but we are determined to maintain our status as a strong and viable organization Our Board members are personally committed to Mothers & Babies, each contributes their time, talent and personal resources to help strengthen our agency Due to a number of government issues and delays , we had the unique experience of having to competitively re-apply for all but one of our major contracts during the first four months of 2013 One significant loss that was notification from NYS that we would no longer receive state funding to support the Binghamton PAL Center This was quite a shock and we are still continuing to determine how to keep the Center open and providing essential services needed by families and our partner agencies and programs Perinatal health is a community concern With the number of babies in our communities who have died before their first birthday as a consequence of safety issues in the home, we are have expanded our safe sleep campaign to include safe baby education and public service messaging to raise awareness about infant mortality This year, M&BPN became the SCNY Chapter of the National Cribs for Kids program, committing us to educating parents, providers and foster parents about potential risk factors, and offering safe sleep spaces for those who do not have access to one Regionally, risky behaviors during pregnancy have been on the rise As a result, we offered Baby Basics education classes to the most at risk moms, provided education for professionals working with substance abusing women and completed year 17 of our free smoking cessation program Materials were developed to address child spacing and preconception health We also launched a bar coaster campaign focusing on pregnancy risk factors including family planning, alcohol use and STDs Over the past year, through our perinatal services divisions education programs, 1,087 providers completed one or more of our professional education programs, 85 adult consumers and 474 youth attended education sessions on various personal, infant or family health topics, 100 pregnant women attended pregnancy education programs held in partnership with our prenatal clinics, and through our toll-free information and referral service, 6,401 individuals were assisted for their insurance or other personal issue or need Having health insurance helps individuals and families prevent some serious illness by paying for regular check-ups and identifying problems before theybecome serious and helps moms-to-be get the care they need before, during and after their pregnancy to ensure babies are born as healthy as possible AtMothers & Babies, we do our best to make sure everyone has the coverage they need and deserve During the past year, we enrolled 3,624 individuals inhealth insurance programs, assisted 783 families to receive help when they were not eligible for health insurance, and worked with 300 families to maintaintheir childrens health insurance with annual renewals In addition, 41 of 65 school districts participated in the KIC project and resulted in our being able toenroll 169 individuals in insurance A healthy adolescent is able to realize his/her individual potential around critical developmental tasks related to sexuality Our Teen Pregnancy Prevention programs reached students in 13 school districts and five agencies throughout a six county region The evidence-based curriculums used in our programs for middle and high school youth are in alignment with state education standards and help prepare teens for their developmental tasks related to sexuality During the past year, 1,845 middle school youth completed the Draw the Line program, 206 high school youth completed the Be Proud, Be Responsible program and 927 MS/HS youth completed one or more Life Skills sessions Helping parents to better understand and communicate with their teens is an important component of teen pregnancy prevention, during the past year, 924 parents participated in programming related to teen issues Optimal child health and development and reduction of child abuse and neglect are strongly correlated Our PAL Family Resource Centers are a place where families can find support, play with their children, hone their parenting skills and get connected to community resources Designed to reduce stressors for parents and assist them with their needs, a visit to the PAL Centers can mean a number of different things to the people that drop by Parents who attend the centers can benefit from a mentoring program, parenting classes and access to staff who not only care about their wellbeing, but want to help them be as successful as possible For parents that do not have custody of their children it is a place where their supervised visits can take place They have the opportunity to learn from other parents and center staff, while in a safe, non threatening environment The PAL Centers also offer free meals, including regular dinners and holiday events for families in need, and for families who are separated, it provides a chance to sit down and have a meal as a family, which may not otherwise take place For families that are in need of clothing, the centers offer a free clothing closet for children 0-6 years of age During this past year, a total of
