WARREN COUNTY COUNCIL AGAINST DOMESTIC VIOLENCE, dba
TURNING POINT
Pt. III – Stmt. of Program Accomplishments
For the Year Ended June 30, 2013

Turning Point provided direct, in-person services to 183 individuals, unduplicated, and another 802 hotline calls in 2013.

1) HOTLINE:

Community Need:

Leaving an abusive or violent situation is an extremely complicated and dangerous process. Victims often see an increase in the frequency and intensity of violence when leaving, in 70-80% of intimate partner homicides, no matter which partner was killed, the man physically abused the woman before the murder (2003, NIJ DOJ, Campbell).

Nationally, nearly 2.2 million people called a domestic violence hotline in one year to escape, seek advice or assist someone else dealing with a violent situation (NNEDV, 2009). Hotline advocates provide potentially life-saving support, information and referrals, especially when responding to such calls.

Target Population:

The target population is victims and significant others dealing with domestic and/or sexual violence as well as service providers, first responders, and community members assisting victims

Activities:

The hotline is answered 24/7 by advocates who have completed the basic 48 hour training as required by the Missouri Coalition Against Domestic and Sexual Violence. All client information is confidential and callers can remain anonymous. Advocates responding to hotline calls provide

- Safety Planning
- Information and referral to critical resources and other community services;
- Nonjudgmental support and crisis intervention,
- Problem-solving in the wake of domestic and sexual violence

Model/ Practice/ Evident Used to Design Program:

The Turning Point hotline is modeled upon the hotline standards set forth by the Missouri Coalition Against Domestic and Sexual Violence. All calls and related records and information remain confidential.

2013 Hotline Calls: 802.

2) SHELTER

Community Need:

Access to a domestic violence shelter leads to a 60 to 70% reduction in incidence and severity of continuing assaults in the 3 to 12 month follow-up period compared to battered women who did not access a shelter. In fact, shelter is more effective in reducing re-assault than is court or law enforcement protection. (2005. Campbell, Wolf. Johns Hopkins RAVE Study).

Women are often forced to leave their abusive homes with not much more than the clothes on their backs. Their children may be lacking diapers, changes of clothes, special toys or bedding. The women and children may not have their necessary papers, such as IDs, driver's licenses, social security cards, and banking information. They often have little to no money on them, and they may have lost their jobs due to the stalking and isolation forced upon them by their abusers.

When leaving, some women may need to locate to a shelter that is a considerable distance away from their home to increase safety. Other women may need to stay closer to their homes for school or work, but require a more secure setting than the home of a friend or family members. Shelters provide fleeing women immediate safety and security without proof of identity or outlays of money, and they offer the flexibility to be able to respond to a complex array of needs.

Target Population:

The target population is adult women who are victims of domestic and/or sexual violence and their minor children. Turning Point is one of the few shelters regionally which will accept non-violent boys up to the age of 18 who are still in high school if they are with their mothers.

Activities:

Turning Point has a 20 bed shelter. The buildings are equipped with high resolution digital security cameras and an alarm system to help ensure safety. Confidentiality is strictly maintained.

Once in shelter, the women receive:

- Food, personal hygiene supplies, and other items necessary to meet basic needs.
- Twin beds and clean linens.
- Emergency clothing and/or vouchers to the Turning Point resale shop for additional clothing and/or household supplies.
- Assistance developing goals and plans of action, depending on the individual woman's needs;

Support group twice a week;

- Information and referrals;
- Education and information on the nature and dynamics of domestic and sexual violence;
- Limited Transportation by staff, access to the OATS bus for appointments and meetings;
- School supplies;
- Assistance securing prescriptions or other critical needs;
- Encouragement to meet at least one time with the counselor

Model/ Practice/ Evident Used to Design Program:

Turning Point models this program upon the Shelter Standards set forth by the Missouri Coalition Against Domestic and Sexual Violence All calls and related records and information remain confidential.

2013 Shelter Clients: 143. Bednights: 3,995.

3) ADVOCACY

Community Need:

In 2011, more than 40,000 incidents of domestic violence were reported to Missouri law enforcement agencies, and of those, at least 31 wives and girlfriends and 6 husbands and boyfriends were murdered by intimate partners (2011, MSHP UCRA). The civil and criminal justice systems have historically been difficult for victims of domestic and sexual violence to access, and they remain challenging to navigate and/or to understand. But most women first encounter these systems when they become victims of the violence.

Access to an advocate helps victims understand and navigate through the system and hopefully retain such knowledge in the event of future need.

Target Population:

The target population includes victims of domestic and/or sexual violence who are seeking justice or legal remedies in the civil or criminal justice systems.

Activities:

Turning Point staff does not provide legal representation or advice, but does provide assistance, support, education, and guidance around the following:

- Civil and criminal court processes, including hearings, filings, and related appointments;
- Filings and hearings for Orders of Protection;
- Securing attorneys through area legal service providers;
- Completing and filing Crime Victim Compensation Claims,
- Completing and filing Victim Impact Statements;
- Law Enforcement office training on the dynamics of domestic and sexual violence.

Because the needs of victims are complex and challenging, Advocates also help solve problems in other areas of their lives, including, but not limited to housing transportation, child care, and emotional distress.

Turning Point staff is among the few in the surrounding counties with this level of expertise, and they are sought after to provide training for law enforcement and to provide expert testimony in court hearings.

Model/ Practice/ Evident Used to Design Program:

The Turning Point Advocacy Program is modeled upon the standards set forth by the Missouri Coalition Against Domestic and Sexual Violence All calls and related records and information remain confidential

2013 Direct Service Advocacy Clients: 57.

4) COUNSELING

Community Need:

The psychological impact of domestic and sexual violence is dramatic: 60% of battered women report suffering from depression (2000, Barnett), and Posttraumatic Stress Disorder is also common and includes flashbacks, intrusive imagery, nightmares, anxiety, emotional numbing, insomnia, hyper-vigilance, and avoidance of traumatic triggers (1995, Vitanza, Vogel, and Marshall). Victims also experience emotional upheaval and chaos when entering shelter, often due to the combination of trauma and fear of the unknown of homelessness.

In less clinical terms, battered and raped women need assistance with coping strategies, self-care, healing, and with breaking the isolation that is associated with violence and with trauma. Women describe confusion and self-blame when trying to understand what has happened to them.

Target Population:

The target population is adult survivors of domestic and/or sexual violence residing in shelter who are seeking nonjudgmental support and guidance regaining control of their lives.

Activities:

Counseling services provide survivors with an opportunity to have professional crisis intervention to gain skills that calm the chaos and emotional distress of the violence and the move into homelessness and to receive referrals for on-going trauma therapy beyond shelter. Survivors meet individually with the part-time Counselor on an as-needed, voluntary basis while in shelter. The Counselor is available 3 days per week for 2 to 3 hours.

Counseling may include any or all of the following.

- Safety Planning;
- Crisis intervention;
- Psycho-education on individual, emerging issues;
- Problem-solving;
- Skill building for coping;
- Education on the dynamics of domestic and/or sexual violence;
- Referrals for trauma or other ongoing therapy.

Model/ Practice/ Evident Used to Design Program:

The Counseling Program is based upon the standards set forth by the Missouri Coalition Against Domestic and Sexual Violence. The program framework views domestic and sexual violence as issues of power and control and of gender inequality.

2013 Direct-service Counseling for 65 individuals.

5) AFTER CARE

Community Need:

74% of the US knows someone who is or has been a victim of domestic violence (Allstate Foundation, 2006). The prevalence is staggering. 25% of all women in a lifetime, or 1.5 million women annually, are raped or physically assaulted by intimate partners. 45% of female homicide victims are murdered by intimate partners as compared to 5% of males similarly murdered (2009, Dept of Justice). Women account for at least 85% of domestic violence victims who endure the most chronic and most injurious violence through physical, psychological, sexual and financial abuse (2000, 2006 National Violence Against Women Surveys).

Domestic Violence is further complicated among impoverished women: when women leave violent relationships to enter shelter, they are stepping into homelessness; ½ of all homeless women and children become homeless while escaping abuse (2011, MCADSV), and 92% of homeless women have experienced severe physical and/or sexual violence in a lifetime (2005, National Center on Homelessness). Combined with economic abuse that may have left them jobless and destitute, with fewer skills for economic self-sufficiency, victims of domestic violence are especially vulnerable to poverty. Poverty and economic distress are factors that cause women to return to or stay connected abusers.

Target Population:

The target population is victims of domestic and/or sexual violence who have an established relationship with Turning Point, most typically as residents of shelter or through a long-term, intensive relationship with the Court Advocacy Program or through a non-residential Support Group. This population is extremely fragile financially, but demonstrates the ability to gain or develop skills necessary for being self-sustaining.

Activities:

After Care increases safety by helping women become self-sustaining through increased financial self-efficacy and literacy. Women initially meet with the After Care Advocate within a few days of entering shelter or after being referred into the program through another Turning Point program. Women meet with their advocates at least weekly while in shelter to identify barriers and to create goals for self-sustainability.

They are also offered workshops that are customized to be the needs of the women accessing the program, such as car care, transportation options, and landlord and tenant relations.

The After Care Advocate also visits with the women in their new homes. The After care Advocate provides assistance with:

- Developing and making decisions based on a realistic budget and record-keeping system;
- Establishing and maintaining bank accounts;

Cost-saving potions such as coupons and energy savings;

Private sessions with the advocate to help with individual needs and concerns;

Direct financial assistance to help resolve financial crises and/or to stabilize in the initial stage of leaving shelter, including rent deposits, utility payments, transportation problems, and other basic needs.

Model/ Practice/ Evident Used to Design Program:

The program uses the AllState Foundation's Financial Empowerment Curriculum: Moving Ahead Through Money Management, and information from the REAP Program of Redevelopment Opportunities for Women.

6) SUPPORT GROUP

Community Need:

Isolation is a common tactic used by abusers to maintain control and to hide the abuse. Silence and secrecy also surround domestic violence and rape, both as control tactics and as part of the self-shaming that survivors exhibit (2011, MCADSV). Survivors report that they are concerned about not being believed or understood as critical barriers to reaching out for help.

For many survivors, breaking the isolation and speaking out about their abuse are some of the most powerful steps toward self-empowerment (2011, MCADSV). They report finding great comfort when talking among peers who have shared a similar experience, and that being able to talk it out helps gain the confidence necessary to continue their path toward independence from their abusers or their pasts (ibid). When group members are peers and when facilitators are trained in the dynamics of domestic and sexual violence, support groups can provide an effective forum for relief from the isolation and an accessible forum for speaking out about personal trauma

Target Population:

The target population is women who are survivors of domestic and/or sexual violence, including both shelter residents and non-residents.

Activities:

Support groups are held twice a week for the women in shelter, and each group is facilitated by a staff member and/or a volunteer licensed counselor. Support groups are also provided for victims who are not in shelter and are facilitated by staff members and/or volunteer facilitators. Support groups cover a wide variety of topics, many of which are generated by the group participants. All group members are required to maintain confidentiality of other group members as well as the shelter location. Group members can attend as often or as infrequently as they choose. Volunteers or staff members provide childcare while mothers are attending support group.

Model/ Practice/ Evident Used to Design Program:

Turning Point models their support group system after the standards established by the Missouri Coalition Against Domestic and Sexual Violence.

2013 Support Group Program Participants: 52.

PUBLIC AWARENESS:

Turning Point impacted 9,153 members of the general public, faith community, professional groups, and others through 28 presentations and/or published articles and press releases.

Turning Point participates in the Human Services Councils of Warren, Franklin, Montgomery, and St. Charles Counties, and in Chambers of Commerce in Warrenton, Wright City, and Washington, MO

Advocates provide roll call training for law enforcement for Warrenton and Wentzville Police Departments, and for the Warren County Sheriff's Department.
