3 Did the organization cease conducting, or make significant changes in how it conducts, any program services? . . . . . ☐ Yes ☑ No

If "Yes," describe these changes on Schedule O

4 Describe the organization's program service accomplishments for each of its three largest program services, as measured by expenses Section 501(c)(3) and 501(c)(4) organizations are required to report the amount of grants and allocations to others, the total expenses, and revenue, if any, for each program service reported

4a (Code) (Expenses $ 258,382 including grants of $ 103,000) (Revenue $ 245,300)

In FYE 2012/2013 The Coffee Trust project of The Global Community Trust, expanded its work beyond the Ixil region of Guatemala to western Honduras The program service accomplishments narrative will be divided into the two areas, Guatemala and Honduras Guatemala The department of Quiche and the municipalities of San Gaspar Chajul, Santa Maria Nebaj and San Juan Cotzal) During FYE 2012/2013 The Coffee Trust responded to a fundamental change that took place at the end of the previous fiscal year Up until that point, with a few minor exceptions, The Coffee Trust had worked strictly with Fundacion Ixil, a non-profit organization in Guatemala of which, Bill Fishbein, president of The Coffee Trust, was a founding member The responsibilities were structured so that Bill would supervise the development projects in the Ixil region, while Fundacion Ixils executive director, Paula Rodriguez, would carry out the projects Bill and Paula worked closely from the inception of the program to develop the education, health care, food security, and economic diversification projects However, as FYE 2011/2012 came to a close, it became apparent that values of the board of directors at Fundacion Ixil had changed The Coffee Trust decided to continue to support the projects on its own, bypassing Fundacion Ixil The Coffee Trust then engaged Paula Rodriguez to supervise these projects in Guatemala as she had done previously That meant finding new funding sources and developing an administrative procedure to replace what was lost with the foundation Mujeres Chajulense Savings and Micro-Credit and Womens Weavings Coop The most dramatic example of The Coffee Trusts program work during FYE 2012/13 is the womens savings and micro-credit project, Mujeres Chajulense This project was always being criticized by the board of Fundacion Ixil, as they never quite understood how long it takes for such programs to become sustainable During FYE 2012/2013, Mujeres Chajulense became close to two-thirds financially sustainable (During FY2013/2014 the program is 90% sustainable on track to be 100% financially sustainable over this next year) In fact, this year the coffee cooperative from which the savings program was born is deeply in trouble while the womens saving program is thriving Chajulense Honey Farmers Beekeeping is always a challenge, as the changing climate is a variable that always keeps production off balance Once again, the honey farmers sold 100% of their production, but production was down due to extreme climate conditions Food Security and Health The Coffee Trust Food Security Program was renamed during the fiscal year to be called the Food Sovereignty Program This was done to acknowledge that it is more important that the farmers to control their own food supply and become self-sustaining when it comes to their food production In this regard, we began to shift our work from providing a fair amount of the materials to the community to placing these responsibilities on the communitys shoulders This has not been a simple matter When we began the projects we were deeply aware of the culture of dependency that had been nurtured by well-intended NGOs after the brutal Guatemalan civil war After that war in 1996, NGOs flooded the region with give-a-way programs Eventually the indigenous culture that had been strong and self-reliant became deeply dependent upon outside help to the point that they had adopted victimization as a way of life When we started our program we knew that we would have to confront this issue, but didnt want to do so head on We decided the best place to begin was in food security where we provided most of the seeds, most of the chickens and most of the components to the efficient stoves We gave less and less each year, but decided that 2012/2013 would be a fulcrum year where we would begin the process of shifting to a more self-reliant program There were 175 families involved in the program that included family gardens, the production of nutritious vegetables, trainings in new recipes, trainings in rich compost development, trainings in proper chicken raising, and efficient ventilated stoves (Most homes have indoor, unventilated stoves that cause billowing smoke to occur daily in each home, which results in serious, often fatal, respiratory illnesses, and stunted brain development among children) This program is currently working well as the fundamental shift has been made albeit a slow and cumbersome one With the shift toward self-reliance, there was a loss of some families (35 families left the program) who simply wanted everything to be given to them Over the long term, this does no one any good We hope, and fully expect, that as time goes by, these reluctant families will see how the other families are thriving and will once a gain join the program Education The Coffee Trust continued to support Horizontes sin Limites and provide scholarships to Ixil middle school and high school students along with computer training classes, Spanish Boot Camp for students whose Spanish skills are weak (most Ixil students speak Spanish only as a second language to their native Ixil), work study and job training and support for the local library Capacity Building As a result of the break up between Fundacion Ixil and The Coffee Trust, it became apparent that the projects that had been supported for several years were in jeopardy With that in mind, the seriousness of the stability and longevity of the local NGOs became in issue that had nit been dealt with before If the local NGOs were strengthened to be strong enough to withstand even a break up of this degree, the long term impact of the effort would not necessarily be in danger With this in mind, the Coffee Trust undertook a Capacity Building effort that was designed to strengthen each local NGO so they would be stronger organizationally, more capable of generating their own income without an outside donor, and to ensure that decisions made by the local boards would always be made democratically, with a voice from the community part of the decision making process In this regard, and in addition to the work that Paula had been doing monthly with each NGO, The Coffee Trust engaged the local business consultants, Carlos Hernandez and Carlos Gonzales (a team of consultants we refer to as Los Carlos) to work with and strengthen our local NGOs Each NGO has had regular meetings with Los Carlos to define their missions SWOTs, (seminars producing each NGOs Strengths, Weaknesses, Opportunities, and Threats) were conducted, managed, and analyzed From that point, priorities were defined, as were the roles and responsibilities of each NGOs staff and employees A hierarchy of leadership was defined, and determined for each organization The Coffee Trust worked with each organization to identify funding opportunities so they could access their own funding without The Coffee Trust Democratic decision making was the hardest to concept to get across to the NGOs Mujeres Chajulense Working with Los Carlos on Capacity Building, Mujeres Chajulense recognized that it was much closer to sustainability than previously predicted By separating the womens weaving project from the micro-credit project, a strategy was developed to seek low interest lenders for long term funding for the credit program and new clients for the weaving project The Coffee Trust introduced Root Capital and KIVA Foundation to Mujeres Chajulense for micro-credit financing and continued to seek new clients for the weavers (As an aside, in the next fiscal year, agreements were made with KIVA and Root Capital to fund Mujeres Chajulense with low interest and even no interest loans And Caf Campesino, an affiliate of Cooperative Coffees has agreed to promote the weavings to its 24 members)Food Security Working with Los Carlos on Capacity Building, the local NGO, IDR, decided that its executive director was not truly suited for her role and she was too focused on imposing changes on the people than willing to nourish changes over time She was terminated and the program began to adjust its priorities As a result of the Capacity Building efforts, many changes were made in the next fiscal year, but during FYE 2012/2013, most of the efforts were done to lay the groundwork for the next fiscal year Honduras Western Honduras in the departments of Ocotopeque, Lempira, Labor, Corquin, and Intibuca In July of 2012, the Coffee Trust was invited to western Honduras to meet 3 fair trade organic coffee cooperatives, a coffee processor and exporter and a regional bank interested in starting a foundation for the purpose of helping coffee producing families in the region improve the quality of their lives Caf Capucas, Cocafelol, and Asociacion Aruco were the coops Beneficio Santa Rosa and its affiliate, Coffee Planet were the processors and exporters Banco Occidente was the regional bank The group had joined together and wanted h
