Part III

Statement of Program Service Accomplishments

Check if Schedule O contains a response to any question in this Part III

1

Briefly describe the organization’s mission

Our mission is to conserve and study certain raptors, as well as prevent their extinction. Raptors are among the critical components of our natural world and cultural heritage, and they assist humans in understanding their interdependence with nature and the environment. Through our programs, we seek to advance the knowledge of avian biology, ecology, and conservation through research, training and education. As a result, we seek to improve global environmental health and to conserve biological diversity.

2

Did the organization undertake any significant program services during the year which were not listed on the prior Form 990 or 990-EZ?

Yes

No

If “Yes,” describe these new services on Schedule O.

3

Did the organization cease conducting, or make significant changes in how it conducts, any program services?

Yes

No

If “Yes,” describe these changes on Schedule O.

4

Describe the organization’s program service accomplishments for each of its three largest program services, as measured by expenses. Section 501(c)(3) and 501(c)(4) organizations are required to report the amount of grants and allocations to others, the total expenses, and revenue, if any, for each program service reported.

Species Restoration - Two endangered species recovery programs are conducted within the U.S. The captive breeding facility in Boise, Idaho produces young birds for release to the wild to establish self-sustaining populations of these rare species. California condor-by 1982, just 22 California Condors remained on Earth. Today there are 429 individual birds, more than half of them flying free in the wild. This year the 18 pairs held by The Peregrine Fund produced 20 fertile eggs. Fifteen hatched in Boise and the rest were sent to other facilities with the exception of one egg that did not hatch. Thirteen captive-bred condors were transferred to the Arizona Vermilion Cliffs site for release to the wild and that population now includes 69 individuals. Cooperative programs with state agencies and hunting groups were expanded to encourage the use of lead-free ammunition in condor country. “Ingestion of Lead from Spent Ammunition: Implications for Wildlife and Humans” published in 2009 as a book and searchable CD, is still being referenced. Every condor continues to be trapped once or twice a year to be tested and, if necessary, treated for lead poisoning. Aplomado Falcon-this falcon was missing from its native habitat in the American Southwest by the 1950s due to changing land uses. The Peregrine Fund began raising Aplomado Falcons in captivity in the late 1980's and by 1993 a full-scale release program began in South Texas. Falcons were again re-introduced through innovative Safe Harbor agreements. This year surveys found 28 pairs of falcons in South Texas and a total of 55 young were produced. For the second time in eight years we released 52 young from three release sites in South Texas. Releases were suspended in New Mexico due to the continuing drought. Having established a self-sustaining population in South Texas the Peregrine Fund has suspended the captive breeding and release phase of the program.

Education / Information - Education dispels misunderstandings about birds of prey and increases their chances for long-term survival. This year live raptors were presented to more than 39,000 people in the U.S., and thousands more at our international project sites. Visitors to the World Center for Birds of Prey in Boise, Idaho, can see more than a dozen species of live raptors and experience hands-on exhibits, a nature trail, seasonal flight shows, and The Archives of Falconry. This year a contaminants display called Learning from Birds of Prey was completed. The new exhibit educates visitors on how birds of prey provide early warning signs for identifying environmental threats to humans. Calendars, annual reports, news releases, brochures and other materials are updated annually and made available to the public. The Peregrine Fund's online audience encompasses more than 850,000 page views of our webcams trained on Peregrine Falcons and American Kestrels that show them courting, nesting, and raising young each spring. Year-round, viewers access Explore Raptors, a user-friendly guide for all ages to identify and learn about raptor species. For users seeking more technical information, our Global Raptor Information Network presents academic species accounts and bibliographies of published works on 333 raptor species. Journal articles from The Peregrine Fund's library may be requested, this year staff supplied 752 articles to researchers worldwide free of charge. Visitors to the Archives of Falconry learn about the role of falconers in raptor conservation and habitat protection. The website provides tools to join, subscribe to e-newsletters, shop for raptor-related merchandise, and track donations. The organization has 12,682 fans among its 5 Facebook pages.

Conservation Programs - Since founding in 1970, about 105 raptor species in at least 66 countries have benefitted from field research and hands-on recovery efforts by the organization. This year The Peregrine Fund was involved in raptor research, graduate studies, and conservation projects in 19 countries on four continents. Training and support were provided to 22 students conducting graduate thesis research projects and doctoral and master's studies, all in their native countries, since beginning, 93 students have graduated with PhD or MSc degrees. This year, for the first time ever, previously released young of the critically endangered Ridgway's Hawk bred successfully in the wild in the Dominican Republic in an experimental assisted dispersal project. Four Orange-breasted Falcon chicks, hatched in captivity, were released into the wild in Belize, and surveys were conducted for nesting falcons in Belize and Guatemala. Captive-bred and wild-hatched Harpy Eagles were tracked and observed in the forests of Darien, Panama using radio telemetry, and public educational campaigns were conducted to reduce shooting of this threatened species. Six graduate students were supported in Peru, Argentina, Brazil, Chile, and Venezuela, and two graduated with PhD and MSc degrees respectively. We hosted the Third Neotropical Raptor Network Conference as part of the 1st World Raptor Conference in Argentina, and made four scientific presentations. Nine scientific presentations were made at the 13th Pan African Ornithological Conference in Tanzania. Four students continued field studies for post-graduate degrees benefitting vulture conservation in Kenya and understanding of Eleonora's Falcon migration. In Madagascar, work continued to set aside globally significant wetlands and forests, monitor rare and endangered raptor species, assist captive breeding of critically endangered species, support nine graduate students' studies, and work with local communities to develop an ecotourism program while protecting traditional customs and practices. Financial and technical support was given to the Philippine Eagle Foundation for work including captive breeding and release of Philippine Eagles, public education, conservation of critical habitat, and telemetry studies on wild eagles. Annual breeding population surveys of critically endangered Gyps vultures were completed in India, Pakistan, and Nepal that encouragingly revealed a reduction in the rate of population decline due to the use of veterinary diclofenac. Lab analysis of samples from Cambodia were completed to understand the toxicology of Grey-headed Fish Eagles on Lake Tonle Sap. The first research meeting of the American Kestrel Partnership was held to understand the species' decline on a continental scale, and a student was selected to study how the Gyrfalcon responds to impacts of climate change on this Arctic species.

Identifier	Return Reference	Explanation
SchD_P03_S00_L04	Schedule D, Part III, Line 4	The Archives of Falconry functions within The Peregrine Fund's educational as well as its research programs included in the mission statement. The worldwide cultural heritage of falconry extends back over 4,000 years. It was that sport's history and interaction with raptors that led modern practitioners to found and establish The Peregrine Fund to restore endangered populations of birds of prey, starting with the Peregrine Falcon. Their successes in rescuing that and subsequent species have been due in large part to the intimate insight and personal understanding derived from their relationships with these birds through their practice of falconry. While such falconers' interactions and relationships have been documented for hundreds of years, this valuable history was being lost due to the absence of any focused effort to preserve records of falconers and their key roles in raptor conservation. For over a quarter of a century The Archives of Falconry, founded by The Peregrine Fund and unique in the world, has been devoted to the preservation of that historical record.
SchD_P05_S00_L04	Schedule D, Part V, Line 4	The Board of Directors established the endowment fund and the related payout policy that allows The Peregrine Fund to use a portion of the endowment balance each year towards operating expenses including both supporting services and program services as needed. The Board of Directors set up the William A Burnham Memorial Fund as part of the endowment, which provides for grants to be paid based upon the recommendation of the memorial fund's committee members. A permanent endowment was created in 2013 as a result of a donation received that was restricted as to its use in perpetuity to support the Velma Morrison Interpretive Center.

SchJ_P01_S00_L01a	Schedule J, Part I, Line 1a	Companion Travel - on occasion, travel expenses are paid for the President's spouse when it is for a bona fide business purpose. This occurs when an additional person is needed when traveling with a bird and an employee or other volunteer is not available, or when the spouse is participating in development activities and is an integral part of the meetings held, serving as a volunteer development staff member. Because these are bona fide business expenses, it is not a taxable benefit to the President. If neither of those cases applies, spousal travel is not paid for by The Peregrine Fund. Housing Allowance - the President receives a housing allowance that is included on his W-2 as taxable income as per the salary agreement negotiated and approved by the Board of Directors.
SchJ_P01_S00_L01b	Schedule J, Part I, Line 1b	Companion Travel - there is no written agreement regarding reimbursement of spousal travel expenses. Spousal travel is only paid for when it is determined to be a bona fide business expense after discussion between the President, Accountant and Bookkeeper. Housing Allowance - is per a written agreement negotiated and approved by the Board of Directors.

F990_P06_S0B_L11b	Form 990, Part VI, Section B, Line 11b	The form 990 is prepared in-house by the Accountant. It is then reviewed by the Bookkeeper before being sent to the President and Vice-President for review. After these reviews are completed, the public disclosure version of the 990 is e-mailed or sent by US Postal Service to all board members who are given an opportunity to comment before the return is filed with the IRS.
F990_P06_S0B_L12c	Form 990, Part VI, Section B, Line 12c	Each director, principal officer, and member of a committee with governing board-designated powers annually signs a statement which affirms they have received a copy of the Conflict of Interest Policy, have read and understand the policy, have agreed to comply with the policy, and understand The Peregrine Fund is charitable and in order to maintain its federal tax exemption it must engage primarily in activities which accomplish one or more of its tax-exempt purposes. To ensure The Peregrine Fund operates in a manner consistent with charitable purposes and does not engage in activities that could jeopardize its tax-exempt status, periodic reviews are conducted. The reviews include whether compensation arrangements and benefits are reasonable based on competent survey information and the result of arm's length bargaining and whether partnerships, joint ventures, and arrangements with management organizations conform to the Organization's written policies, are properly recorded, reflect reasonable investment or payments for goods and services, further charitable purposes and do not result in inurement, impermissible private benefit, or in an excess benefit transaction.
F990_P06_S0B_L15	Form 990, Part VI, Section B, Line 15	Prior to the meeting of the Compensation Committee, the President provides the Chairperson of the committee with an evaluation of the officers under him and a summary of his own activities for the year. The President at that time recommends compensation for the vice president and makes recommendations for the committee to consider for himself. When the committee meets, the President is in attendance at the beginning of the meeting to answer questions and provide a verbal report of the activities and accomplishments of himself and the vice president during the previous year. He is then excused and the Compensation Committee meets to decide on compensation to propose to the entire Board for the officers. During the meeting of the full Board, at the conclusion of the regular business the Board goes into a closed session to consider the report of the Compensation Committee. A vote is taken and thus the salaries of officers are established for the upcoming year. The Chairperson of the Compensation Committee provides written minutes of the meeting for the files. When the President makes his recommendations he takes into consideration (1) job performance during the previous year, (2) professional qualifications, (3) experience, (4) cost of living increase/decrease, (5) compensation provided by comparable organizations, and (6) the overall budget for the upcoming year and whether increases in compensation are possible. Members of the Compensation Committee verify that compensation for officers of The Peregrine Fund is in line. Occasionally one of the Directors has his staff research comparable compensation information.
