Development and Engineering Whenever possible, Water Missions International utilizes solar power for the solutions we implement This is made possible by our strategic relationship with SolarWorld Water Missions International's eMpower initiative (eMpower = solar energy charging Mobile phones) was implemented in 2012 This technology enables communities to generate supplementary income through mobile phone charging stations for community-owned water solutions When water use in a community is low, water collection fees alone are often not sufficient to cover the ongoing maintenance and operation costs of the safe water solution The additional revenue stream generated by eMpower can be critical to a project's financial viability
