Annual Meeting and Regional Conference. The Academy's eight-day Annual Meeting is perennially the world's largest gathering of neurologists. In 2013, attendance at the Annual Meeting in San Diego drew 12,343, the third most attended Annual Meeting to date behind Chicago 2008 and Boston 2007. More than 2,300 research abstracts were presented and leading experts on a vast array of neurologic diseases discussed the latest research results and clinical applications. The meeting featured nearly 180 continuing medical education courses that were strongly attended by neurologists looking to update their knowledge and skills and prepare for recertification. Programs also were dedicated to helping practicing neurologists and business managers run more efficient and effective offices and clinics. The Academy also communicated its advocacy priorities and success and urged greater member participation. The 2013 regional Fall Conference attracted 565 attendees, a record number for the weekend-long meeting, up from 534 in 2012 and nearly double the attendance of just a few years ago. The Fall Conference provides updates on neurology diseases and practice management improvements for neurologists and practice managers, particularly those who need to fulfill annual continuing medical education requirements by year end.

The campaign included a new app called Concussion Quick Check to help parents, coaches and athletic trainers quickly identify the symptoms of concussion and the AAN guideline recommendations. The public relations campaign to promote awareness of the findings in the sports concussion guideline received the top award from the Public Relations Society of America/MN Chapter in March 2014.
