Form 990-EZ, Part III - Organization's Primary Exempt Purpose

Alabama is currently one of eight states in the country that does not have public charter schools. The Alabama Coalition for Public Charter Schools is a growing group of concerned parents, educators, citizens, and policy makers who believe that the state of Alabama needs public charter schools in order to make sure that every student in the state has access to a high quality school option. The Coalition believes that public charter schools should be one piece in the overall reform strategy to provide all Alabama students with an excellent education. The Coalition is committed to making sure that Alabama citizens have access to accurate information about public charter schools through a comprehensive education and marketing campaign. The Coalition will use this education campaign to organize and promote facts about public charter schools as a strategy to bring public charter schools to the forefront of the conversation about education in Alabama.

Form 990-EZ, Part III, Line 28 - Statement of Program Service Accomplishments

The Coalition's theory of change comes from the experience of other states: once an individual learns what a public charter school is, he/she overwhelmingly supports public charter schools. Because of this, a comprehensive education campaign focused on the facts about public charter schools is integral to bringing this innovative educational tool to Alabama. Through town halls, public forums, panel discussions, op-eds, and small group public charter school visits, the Coalition has embarked on a statewide comprehensive education and marketing campaign about public charter schools. Our education effort is broad with a large target audience and specific messaging, including parents, educators, and community leaders. In addition, the Coalition serves as a convener for the efforts of nine organizations that are also committed to bringing public charter schools to
