Statement of Reasonable Cause

Please abate penalties for our failure to file tax returns for 2013 and 2014 and pay the taxes in a timely manner. We appreciate the invitation to attach this statement to the form 990-PF because we have always had every intention of following all the rules. Our failure is a result of mistakes we made, erroneous advice we received, ignorance of the law, and a move across the country during the early years of Augellara.

We funded The Augellara Foundation for the first time on the last day of 2013. In 2014, we started establishing channels of operation such as a website and electronic as well as physical addresses. We made broad scope plans for how Augellara could make a difference and prepared our application for tax exempt status. March 27, 2015 the IRS awarded our section 501 (c) (3) status. In this statement I will outline how we made assumptions in error, how we relied on our attorney and received erroneous advice and omissions from him, how we were ignorant about the filing requirements, and how our move across the continent in the fall of 2014 strained our time and attention and caused further failures to bridge all the gaps to discover our filing responsibilities.

Our first mistake was to assume that we could fund the foundation on the last day of 2013 and start business in 2014. In our minds there was no activity in 2013 for the foundation, just a setup. Most of the other mistakes were related to not knowing where to find answers when we felt uneasy about the advise we were receiving. Even though we kept asking questions, our attorney, Tom Virr, had been referred by a broker as someone who knew about non-profits and we didn't question him enough. Tom Virr was the power of attorney for The Augellara Foundation until we called the IRS and had him removed in 2016. His knowledge may have been about non-profits other than private foundations, which have a different set of rules than any other non-profits. Only now in 2016 have we figured out how specialized private foundations are in filing and tax paying requirements and we looked for help from professionals with other private foundation clients.

In retrospect, the Form 1023 was probably put together by someone in Tom Virr's firm that we never talked with. Tom Virr answered all questions in a general way. We relied on him to tell us what our responsibilities were because we came to him at the beginning and there was no doubt we depended on him to tell us all important requirements. He filed a trust document with the state of Texas in 2013 and didn't file Form 1023 until 2015 and never mentioned that tax returns would be due for 2013 and 2014. I know that we mentioned during meetings our plans to fund the trust, both timing and amount, and asked if we should do anything one way or another. Often I asked him about the Form 1023 filing and expected everything to start with that approval. I remember him saying there was a requirement to pay out 5% of "something" to charitable causes and if we didn't there would be some kind of slap on the wrist, "a 2% penalty or something". He didn't seem to know about the excise tax on net investment income because he never mentioned it even though he said we had a responsibility to the foundation to invest the cash so its income would increase. He said we'd need to report that we had properly spent the 5% in an "information return," which would come up "later". When pressed for the calculation so we could plan our expenditures starting in 2014, he sent a Form 990-PF without instructions. It didn't make sense and we didn't ask for help because he had already said he just entered the information into the computer and didn't really know the formula. We weren't sure who to ask and time passed. We also had long discussions about our ideas for the foundation and asked him specifically what was permitted and what was not. He summarized his direction for us by telling us we could do anything through the the foundation that we considered charitable and as long as there was no self-dealing we'd be fine. So we received misinformation on several levels and didn't get the information we needed to get off to a good start.

This is our first responsibility for a section 501(c)(3) organization and we have been completely ignorant of the law. For example, we didn't know the foundation couldn't free-fashion a scholarship program to benefit foster kids, choose a beneficiary from the applicants, and pay for his school; we're still trying to learn this particular set of rules because that was one of our projects, the wrong box was checked in our Form 1023 application, and now we've got to figure out how to honor our commitment and do so legally. More germane to this statement, we didn't know a tax return would be required in 2013 at all. We didn't know about the excise tax and thought non-profits didn't pay any tax. We worried about filing the information return to explain what we had done in 2014 and intended to follow up on it, but didn't think tax would be due or we would have taken steps to pay it. We didn't know that there was a penalty that was based on the number of days late would apply to the Form 990-PF.

My husband and I are co-trustees of the foundation and have been in the process of moving (selling a business, finding a place to live in eastern USA, actually moving, making new friends and settling), which has caused us to make these decisions without enough study. It was easy to convince ourselves that nothing was required in 2013 because we only funded it on the last day and there were no activities otherwise. In 2014, we took steps to meet the (nebulous in our minds) 5% rule and bring shape to new ideas forming around the foundation. With anxiety rising we looked for someone who understood private foundations enough to get us off on the right foot. Our application was approved March 27, 2015 and I hoped erroneously that 2015 would be the first official year the IRS expected us to be in order. During our research to find professional expertise in private foundations, we've learned that we are delinquent in filing 2013 and 2014 tax returns.

We expect to catch up and file the 2015 Form 990-PF timely as extended. We are catching up all our affairs, which have been glossed over and sometimes neglected during our move.

To summarize, the exemption came with a set of sophisticated responsibilities we didn't know from the outset, so sophisticated it took a little while to find someone who could help us. We have every intention of coming into compliance for 2015 and following. Thank you for your time and consideration.
