SUMMARY

In the spring of 1990 the Kelly Miller Alumni Association began discussing fundraising ideas for the organization. This laid the groundwork for what was to become known as the West Virginia Black Heritage Festival, Inc. The first Black Heritage Festival, which was begun on September 22, 1990, was called the "Emancipation Proclamation Celebration". It officially began at 11 a.m. on Water Street (now known as E.B. Saunders Way) in Clarksburg, West Virginia. City officials were in attendance for the reading of the Proclamation. Vendors, in the early celebrations, were social clubs and other local organizations. Attendance went far beyond expectation and after three very successful years, the event had outgrown its parent organization and it was decided that it should branch out on its own; thus began the West Virginia Black Heritage Festival.

The West Virginia Black Heritage Festival, Inc. is a community based 501 (c) (3) not-for-profit organization whose mission is, to promote the African American experience by embracing the many milestones that our forefathers have made since the Emancipation Proclamation.

Clarksburg hosts the largest festival of this type in the state of West Virginia. Attendance over this three-day event consists of approximately 10,000 guests, numerous vendors and several entertainers. Each year we bring quality entertainment into the city of Clarksburg. Local hotels and retail shops benefit from this weekend of activity. Vendor spaces are open to quality hand-crafted items, fine arts, fine imported goods, and unique gift items. We are seeking exhibitors particularly having display items, which are unique and/or culturally oriented. The vendors and entertainment selection is made based on the cultural benefit they provide. They must not only entertain, but must also educate the public as to the rich culture and many accomplishments of African Americans.

West Virginia Black Heritage Festival, Inc. values the youth in our community. We contribute to the Kelly Miller Foundation scholarship program each year. Outstanding youths are recognized and honored through scholarships as our young king and queen for their educational accomplishments and community involvement. Recognizing the contributions of those who have brought us thus far, a senior king and queen are also chosen.

Our primary goals are to promote and preserve the best in West Virginia black art and music, as well as exposing all to the positive contributions made by African Americans.
