A program within summer camp designed on preventing the regressions in reading proficiency often associated with summer vacation. Volunteers would bike door-to-door weekly to deliver books to children that could not attend our summer camp. Each book selected was geared to the child's reading interest and level, and included suggested activities to enhance the reading. 72 children received books.

Bookstore

Our bookstore is run as a service to the local neighborhood. We give away all of our books for free, and we specialize in children's books and African-American literature. We also host book readings for local authors, and communal reading activities for day care centers in our neighborhood. In 2013, we gave away 13,547 free books.
