Pt III, Line 31 The Undriving Education Project continues to build community awareness of alternatives to driving carbon-producing single-occupancy cars, issuing more than 15,000 licenses since 2007. Licenses include licensee-chosen "un-dorsements" for walking, biking, telecommuting, skipping the trip, carpooling, etc. Undrivers share alternatives and success stories through the webpage and email list as well as displaying their licenses on their commuter bags. Local governments and trip reduction programs are inviting Undriving to help educate increasingly large populations of commuters, because surveys show that Undrivers honor their commitments to drive less.

In May 2013, Transportation Choices Coalition turned 20 years old. To mark their 20th year, they selected 20 Transportation Champions to honor in their first Hall of Fame. Undriving was one of them, and we are honored to be in such excellent company.

Pt III, Line 31 Healthy Habits' mission is to help young adults move out of homelessness and into healthy, prosperous lives. Healthy Habits is structured around a variety of presentations and conversations on healthful eating, exercise, disease prevention, and self-care facilitated by naturopathic doctor Jeff Metzger, and is dedicated to improving the lives of the youth residents and elders at the Labateyah center. To improve the quality of food available to the teens and elders, Healthy Habits has developed donation partnerships with the Ballard

Farmers Market, PCC Natural Markets, Whole Foods, and others.

The Eclectic Institute, Pharmax, Western Herbs, and Restorative

Formulations have donated medical supplies as well. The program is building an on-site garden, making healthy swaps

like homemade salad dressing for pre-packaged, artificial packets, and experimenting with more interactive presentations based on youth feedback.

Pt III, Line 31 Urban Sparks is planning a Philanthropic Education Center to provide full-time volunteers with a welcoming and enriching first year so that they choose to play important roles in philanthropic society.

Our mission is to develop philanthropists of the future who support or perform philanthropic work as lifelong donors, nonprofit managers, direct service providers, social entrepreneurs or civil servants.

The center programming/curriculum will showcase a variety of nonprofit endeavors presented by experts in giving, managing and governing of philanthropic work around the world.

The center will include 150 affordable mini-studios for

AmeriCorps members, offices of 6-10 non-profits, and education and gathering spaces including an auditorium, art displays honoring service, meeting rooms and a cafe.

Most large US cities receive an influx of bright generous college graduates who contribute a year of time and effort to improving society. Nationally, 80,000 AmeriCorps members forfeit more than a billion dollars worth of earnings every year as they volunteer. Service house will honor these individuals and help them find niches where they can continue to give, one way or another, thus leveraging a massive resource.

Pt III, Line 31 Other Urban Sparks Program Expenses:

Urban Sparks continued its mission of facilitating and leading community projects as well as acting as a resource for those wanting to accomplish public projects and charitable work. We coach many projects without ever doing monetary business, helping them find resources to complete their projects such as community and government contacts, similar organizations, and vendors. We keep a website and database of resources and readily share them. We also share templates for a variety of documents needed by community groups to manage and fund projects, and we make key networking introductions to bolster neighborhood projects. We act as a free resource to approximately three groups for every one with which we have a fiscal sponsor relationship.
