The organization elected to change its method of accounting from cash to accrual effective for tax year ending 6/30/2014. As a result of the change the organization is recognizing $17,720 in income that was earned in the current tax year. Under the cash method of accounting this income would have been recognized during tax year ending 6/30/2013 when it was received. Based on the accrual method of accounting, income is recognized when it is earned and expenses are recognized when they are incurred regardless of when cash is received or paid.
