GlassRoots works diligently to counter the challenges youth face by providing a safe environment, positive role models, and rigorous program and skill development opportunities through the creation of glass art Our 13-year history has successfully proven that it is possible to marry art and entrepreneurship through real life application of talent, interest and skills GlassRoots core programs, offered for teens and young adults, include STEAM (science, technology, engineering, arts and math) and are offered as in-school residencies, after-school and summer arts programs, and as workshops, using competency in handling molten glass as a pathway to personal development GlassRoots also engages adults in "art for art's sake" workshops held on evenings and weekends In our hotshop at 10 Bleeker Street, risky behaviors are replaced by production teamwork as student groups form glass vases, cups and artistic items in the 2,200 degree heat of our furnace, in our flameworking studio they use gas torches to melt glass and create fine jewelry, in our flat shop students explore the ancient art of mosaics along with more modern techniques, and in our classrooms, business and entrepreneurship come to life GlassRoots programs engage students over a long term and have the potential for a high impact With the growing complexity of the world and the increasing demands of the 21st-century workforce, there is little question that all students should graduate from high school fully prepared for college AND careers All of our secondary school programs use a college and career readiness frame, especially for STEM-related majors and careers GlassRoots uses glassmaking and the elements fire and danger to engage youth while teaching them about the math, physics, chemistry and history of glass Since glassmaking is a collaborative effort, our students also learn life skills such as focus, teamwork, problem solving and responsible behavior While our educational programs focus on youth in high risk situations, we also serve special needs and home schooled students as well as disabled adults
