Citizens for the Educational Advancement of Alaska's Children (CEAAC) is a non-profit organization providing services throughout Alaska. CEAAC was incorporated in the State of Alaska on January 7, 1998. CEAAC was formed to address discriminatory and unconstitutional practices by the State of Alaska in funding rural Alaska schools. Since then, CEAAC has expanded to work in the legislative and public arenas on the range of problems facing at-risk students and low-performing schools in rural and urban areas. Dues are collected from member school districts throughout Alaska, as well as non-district members. Part II-B, Line 1i - Other Activities Description	CEAAC Adopts a legislative plan annually to pursue our core mission of assuring equitable funding of rural Alaska school construction and operations, and policies supporting improvement of low-performing rural schools. Primary efforts have focused on the State of Alaska's school construction funding system, to create equity with urban schools and to make technical and policy changes to law so the system will function as intended. We have also worked with the state administration and legislature on implementation of the constitutional lawsuit we successfully settled, which provides funding to low-performing rural schools to provide equal educational opportunity for the children enrolled there.
